STEPHEN J. FIELD!

Another of a Family of Four Noted Brothers

HAS PASSED TO HIS REWARD

Painless Ending of a Life Which Was Made Up of Many Exciting Scenes Was a Native of Connecticut.

A JURIST OF WORLD WIDE RENOWN

Washington, April, 10.—Justice Stephen J. Field, of the United States supreme court, retired, died at his home on Capitol Hill, in this city, at 6:30 Sunday evening, of kidney complications. About his bedside were his wife and her sister, Mrs. J. Condit Smith; Mr. Justice David J. Brewer, his nephew; Mrs. Edgerton, of California; Mr. Linton, his private secretary, the Rev. Edward M. Mott, rector of the Church of the Advent, and the family servants. He had been unconscious since Saturday morning and death came painlessly. Ever since Justice Field's retirement from the supreme court bench on December 1, 1897, he had enjoyed comparatively good health, and being relieved from the responsibilities which he had borne for so many years, he became more cheerful and seemed to enjoy the society of his friends and acquaintances more than ever before. All during the winter, when the weather was fair, it was his custom to take daily drives about the city, or through the grounds of the Soldiers' Home and alway returned refreshed. About two weeks ago, however, he took a longer ride than usual in an open carriage and contracted a severe cold, which rapidly developed the kidney troubles from which he had suffered, though but slightly, for some time. The deceased readily yielded to treatment and on Thursday last sat up for a time and seemed quite himself again Saturday morning a change for the worse took place, and about noon he lost consciousness. From that time he sank rapidly and expired at 6:30 o'clock.

No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral, nor is it known where he will be buried. It is probable that his remains will be taken to Stockbridge, Mass., where are buried his father and mother and his brothers, Cyrus, Dubley and Jonathan, two sisters and other members of the Field family. It is possible, however, that Mrs. Field may decide to take his remains to California where a considerable part of his life was passed before President Lincoln appointed him a member of the supreme bench. Justice and Mrs. Field never had any children and the only surviving member of his father's family is the justice's youngest brother, Dr. Henry M. Field, corresponding editor of the New York Evangelist. During several years prior to his retirement the justice's health at times, seemed on the point of breaking, but he usually recovered promptly and in a few days would again resume his judicial duties. For the past year and more those most intimate with him knew that his mental powers were becoming somewhat impaired. The results of his long career of great mental activity began to show themselves in a failing memory after his retirement from the bench, though his physical health seemed to improve a little.

Appomattox Day Celebrated.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Governor Roosevelt, of New York, was the guest of honor Monday night at the banquet of the Hamilton club in celebration of Appomattox Day, and when he arose to deliver his address on "The Strenuous Man" he was given a most joyous reception. The cheering was so great that it was several minutes before he could begin his speech. Fully 600 were seated at the banquet tables. John C. Black, of Chicago, spoke on "Grant" and Congressman Evan Settle, of Kentucky, followed with an address on "Lee."

The eulogies of the two great commanders received much applause. Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia, spoke on "The Union," and his remarks were greeted with cheers of approval.

At the conclusion of the banquet Governor Roosevelt spent a short time in his hotel and then took a train for Ann Arbor, where he addressed the students of Michigan university Tuesday.

Governor Pingree of Michigan has signed the bill authorizing Detroit to purchase and operate its street railways, and a New York paper has wisely said; "that when all cities apply the profits of such to relieving the tax burdens, we will escape the impositions of monopolies and not before.

Death of Mrs. Alvira E. Wagner.

Friday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock the worn and weary spirit of Mrs. Alvira E., relict of the late David Wagner, winged its way from earth to the spirit land. She had gradually released her hold upon terrestrial things, reaching out to take hold of the celestial. For four years she has dropped one life cord after another until her tired fingers let go the last, and she slept, as the weary pilgrim sleeps, to awaken in that glorious morning refreshed and beautified.

She was born at Bellefonte, April 22nd 1822, making her age at her death 76 years, 11 months and 15 days. She was the mother of six children, three of whom are living, viz: Mrs John Harris, Mrs. Jack McClelland, of Pittsburg, and Mrs. J. L. Spangler, of Bellefonte.

She was a member of the M. E. church. Her maiden name was Alvira E. Johnston. She is the last of a large family and has all her life lived in this city.

The funeral was held from the residence of her son-in-law Col. J. L. Spangler Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Owing to the absence of her pastor Rev. W. A. Stephens the services were conducted by Rev. Wm. Laurie D. D. L. L. D., of the Presbyterian church who spoke very touchingly of the departed one. Several beautiful selections were sung by the following quartette, Miss Henrietta Butts, Mrs. J. C. Meyer, Messrs. Hard P. Harris and Henry Brown. The funeral was largely attended by the sorrowing friends and relatives of the deceased.

The pall bearers were Messrs. John Meese, John P. Harris, L. A. Schaffer, D. F. Fortney, H. S. Taylor and L. T. Munson.

So her life has ended. We cannot follow to the grave this good mother without sad and heavy hearts; none can be laid in the dust without sundering some holy tie. It is true, her friends are consoled by the reflection that she has lived a long and useful life, that to her life had lost much of its charms, that she had ceased to derive pleasure from its duties and festivities It is true also that her friends were prepared for her departure, that having seen her head silvering, from year to year, her constitution wasting slowly away, her eyes gradually growing dim they were warned that she must soon leave them, but still her death will leave many hearts desolate to know that the beloved and honored are no more, that she who had guided, protected and blessed them is gone forever. That her place is vacant, her voice hushed in perpetual silence and the mother upon whose form they had so often gazed with delight is mouldering in the dust will make their heart sad their homes lonely.

JAMES A. STINE PASSES AWAY.

He Was a Brave and Faithful Soldier of the Late War.

On Monday evening between the hours of ten and eleven the life of an honest faithful soldier, took its flight into the realms of glory, and there to await the sound of reveille and to answer to his name at the last roll call.

James Abraham Stine was a son of Mrs. Rachael Stine of Pleasant Gap. If he had lived until the 21st of April he would have been 21 years old. His father George Stine preceded him to the grave a year ago last May.

When the conflict with Spain broke out James was one of the anxious ones to go to the front, but near the time when the boys left, he sprained his ankle. But by the time the second recruits left in June, Jim was well and as enthusiastic as ever, and with the rest of the brave boys he went south to Chickamauga, Georgia. His captain was proud of him because he was a splendid soldier and always at his post of duty, When sickness was raging through the camp Jim retained his health, and has been well until a few weeks ago when he contracted a heavy cold which turned into typhoid pneumonia, and at last terminated into congestion of the brain which ended the life of a brave efficient, faithful soldier. He was to have been married last Thursday afternoon to Miss Ida Young. He leaves to mourn his departure, his dear mother, a sister Miss Mary and two brothers Ernest and Harry, and many comrades and friends. The funeral will take place this Thursday morning at ten o'clock from his home at Pleasant Gap. Interment in Lutheran cemetery. He will be buried with honors of War, a firing squad from company B, will be present, and tapps will be sounded by one of the buglers.

Death of an Aged Mason.

Quincy, Ills., April 7.—James Clark, one of the oldest Masons in the United States died here today. He was born at Wilkesbarre, Pa., one hundred years ago, in July. He affiliated with the Masonic order in Ohio in 1820, and is said to have been the senior Mason in this country. He was a personal friend of President William Henry Harrison.

SWEET WEDDING BELLS

UNITED IN HOLY BONDS OF WEDLOCK

Ceremony Took Place at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday in St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church Corner of Lamb and Allegheny Streets.

THE ELITE OF SOCIETY WERE PRESENT

One of the most important social events that has transpired in Bellefonte for some time took place Wednesday morning at 11:30 when John McCoy Shugert, son of cashier J. Dunlop Shugert, of the Centre county bank was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Katherine Curtin Harris, eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George F. Harris, and a granddaughter of Pennsylvanias war Governor the late Andrew G. Curtin.

St. John's Protestant Episcopal church where the ceremony took place was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Palms, ferns and potted plants in profusion adorned the chancel and presented a magnificent appearance to the large and fashionable audience assembled.

Promptly at the hour appointed the bridal party entered the north vestibule of the church and as Mendelsohn beautiful wedding march was wafted on the air played by the skillful hands of organist William B. Reeves, the bridal party proceeded slowly up the aisle. First came the ushers, then the bridesmaids, then the maid of honor and last the bride looking very beautiful leaning on the arm of her father, Dr. Harris. They were met at the chancel by the groom attended by his best man, John Blanchard Esq., and the beautiful service of the Episcopal church was performed by Rev. George I. Brown, rector of the church, and soon these two loving hearts were united as one.

The ushers were J. Norris Bogle, of Howard, Pa.; Vance McCormick, of Harrisburg; Frank M. Shugert, Edmund Blanchard, J. Malcolm Laurie and Edgar Burnsides of Bellefonte.

The maid of honor was Miss Adeline Harris, a sister of the bride.

The bridesmaids were Misses. Mary M. Blanchard, Jean S. Shugert, Caroline A. Orvis, Louisa M. Valentine, Blanche M. Hayes, Elizabeth Breese and Rebecca G. Blanchard of Bellefonte; and Katherine Dale of Lemont.

The bride was attired in a beautiful white satin dress trimmed with orange blossoms and wearing a white bridal veil. She carried a beautiful boquet of flowers.

The groom was dressed in a full dress suit of conventional black.

The best man and ushers were attired in full dress suits, prince albert coats and wore white roses in their buttonholes.

The maid of honor Miss Harris looked very beautiful dressed in white swiss, trimmed with lace insertion with a Gainsborough hat trimmed with red roses.

The eight bridesmaids presented a very sweet and beautiful appearance attired in white swiss with lace insertion and wearing Gainsborough hats trimmed with red roses.

After the ceremony the wedding party and the intimate friends of the family repaired to the Curtin residence on High street where the wedding breakfast was served and a short reception was held, after which the bride and groom took the 1:05 train for a wedding tour in Western cities. On their return to Bellefonte which will be in about ten days they will be at home to their many friends at their beautiful home on East Linn street, formerly the residence of J. A. Woodcock

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents to numerous to mention. They came from all parts of the country and show the high esteem in which these young people are held. This paper joins in the congratulations showered upon Mr. and Mrs. John M. Shugert and wish them many happy returns of the day.

Among the guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. William Sage, of Ithaca, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curtin, of Philadelphia; Miss Marion Curtin, of Philadelphia; Miss Harriet Lawton, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. John Roberts, of West Chester.

To the Members of Co. B.

The members of Co. B are earnestly requested to assemble at the Armory at 9:00 o'clock this Thursday morning, in full uniform, to attend the funeral of the late James A. Stine at Pleasant Gap.

Happily Wedded

A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock at St. John's Catholic church on Bishop street. The contracting parties were Miss Celia McMahon and Mr. Frank Waltz. The large church was well filled with the friends and acquaintances of the happy young couple. The nuptial mass was performed by the rector of the church, Rev. Patrick McArdle.

The bride who looked very pretty and captivating was attired in a handsome tailor made suit of blue broadcloth with hat to match. The groom looked very handsome and manly attired in conventional black.

Miss Margery McMahon, a sister of the bride made a very pretty bridesmaid, dressed in a becoming costume of blue with hat to match.

Mr. Joseph McMahon, a brother of the bride acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to which only the intimate friends of the bride and groom were invited.

After a short wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Waltz expect to go to housekeeping in their own home on Bishop street. This paper extends its heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Waltz and wishes them many years of happy wedded life.

United in Wedlock.

Wednesday morning at 7:00 o'clock a quiet but very pretty wedding was celebrated in St. John's Catholic church on Bishop street. The happy parties to this marriage contract were Mr. Harry C. Taylor, of Tyrone, and Miss Jennie Howley, of Bellefonte.

The nuptial mass was said by Rev. P. McArdle, rector of the church. Mr. Frank McCann, of Tyrone, an intimate friend of the groom, acted as best man, while Miss Ellie Howley, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

The bride looked very beautiful dressed in a becoming traveling dress of seal brown. The groom looked manly and handsome dressed in the conventional black.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. John Howley, of East Bishop street, and after the wedding ceremony the bridal party repaired to his residence, where a choice wedding breakfast was served to the intimate friends and members of the two families.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor took the morning train for Tyrone, where they expect to go to housekeeping immediately. They had contemplated a wedding trip, but owing to the bride's ill health this was abandoned.

The groom is a bright and industrious young fellow, a born and bred Bellefonter, he is bound to succeed wherever he goes. He now holds the responsible position of express messenger between Lock Haven and Tyrone.

We congratulate Mr. Taylor and his bride and in the words of "Rip Van Winkle "May they live long and prosper."

A Bold Hold-Up.

EL PASO, Tex., April 11.—A bold hold-up occurred Monday night at the office of the Alamo Gordon Lumber company at Alamo Gordo, N. M., twenty miles north of El Paso.

Monday was pay-day at the lumber camp. Many thousands of dollars were on hand to pay the employes, and the money was given to them a short time before the arrival of the outlaws. All the workmen had dispersed except about fifty, and these lingered in the office.

Suddenly the door was thrown open by two cowboys armed with Winchesters. They walked up to Cashier Davidson's desk and demanded all the money in his possession. He was compelled to open the safe. It contained a bundle of scrip amounting to $50,000. The robbers took this and departed on their horses, which were awaiting them at the door, where they had been held by a third cowboy.

A posse was quickly organized and is now in pursuit of the robbers, but as the country is rough there is small chance of their capture.

NEWS FROM MANILA.

Rebels Active in Cutting Telegraph Lines.

REGARDING LAWTON'S WORK

General Otis Says it is More Complete Than at First Reported. Advance Against the Enemy Continues.

THE RAILROADS WERE DAMAGED

Manila, April 11.—At about midnight the rebels cut the telegraph line at several places between here and Malolos and signal fires were lighted and rockets sent up along the foothills to the right of the railroad. Later the enemy attacked the outposts of the Minnesota regiment between Gigaa and Bocave, five miles sout of Malolos, killing 2 men and wounding fourteen.

Simultaneously the outposts of the Oregon regiment, at Marilo, the next station on the way to Manila, were attacked with the result that three Americans were killed and two were wounded. The Americans also captured two prisoners.

Troops were concentrated along the railroad as thickly as possible and the rebels were driven back to the foothills.

The road bed of the railroad was damaged, but it was repaired almost immediately and traffic was soon resumed through to Malolos.

NEWS FROM OTIS.

Enemy left ninety three uninformed dead on the field and a number seriously wounded. Lawton captured city without destruction of property. His loss ten wounded, slight, except two, one since died. Lieutenant Elling only officer wounded, slight in hand. Enemy retired eastward. Lawton in pursuit this morning. OTIS.

The following dispatch has been received from General Otis:

Manila, April 11.—Adjutant General, Washington: Insurgents attacked MacArthur's line of railway communication last night in considerable force, repulsed by Wheaton with heavy loss. Wheaton's casualties three killed and twenty wounded. OTIS.

Family of Four No More.

When Samuel Wright, who lived back in the mountains, about nine miles from Bodines, died on Friday of blood poisoning, the result of an accident in the woods, a family of four persons was wiped out of existence.

While chopping a log a few days before Wright accidentally cut his right leg below the knee with the axe. Blood poisoning set in a day or two after the accident. About six years ago Mr. Wright's father T. S. Wright, was killed near the spot where the young man was injured, a tree falling on him during a thunder storm. Mrs. Wright, Samuel's mother, died about three months ago of cancer and pneumonia, after suffering intense agony for two weeks. About two weeks ago their eleven year old daughter contracted a heavy cold, which rapidly developed into pneumonia, and the little one died, leaving her brother, Samuel, who followed to the great beyond on Friday.—Williamsport Sun.

Funeral of Samuel M. Graham.

The Philipsburg Journal gives the following particulars of the funeral of Samuel M. Graham, late a member of Co. B.

The body of Samuel M. Graham, was buried on Saturday afternoon and the attendance at the funeral was one of the largest in the town for years. Sorrowing friends from all over the community were in attendance, so great was the popularity of this young man swiftly cut down in the prime of his life. A detachment of Co. B, of the Fifth Regiment in charge of Captain Taylor and his lieutenants came from Bellefonte, a number of the Tyrone Order of Elks and persons from Houtzdale, Osceola, and other points were present to pay tribute to the memory of their dead comrade, brother and friend. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful. Services were held in the Episcopal church under the direction of Dr. Clerc. The pallbearers were: F. K. Lukenbach, Charley Loraine, Dr. Charles McGirk, Frank Hess, Joe Scott, Harry Goss, Dr. F. K. White and Reuben Mull.

End of a Celebrated Trial.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 11.—At the afternoon session of the court Monday in the trial of Dr. Nancy A. Guilford for the alleged murder of Emma Gibbs, the state attorney announced that with the judge's approval he would accept from the prisoner a plea of guilty of manslaughter. The indictment on which she was being tried charged murder in the second degree. Judge Wheeler gave his approval, and after the prisoner had formally made her plea he sentenced her to pay a fine of $1 and to serve ten years in the state prison. Mrs. Guilford received the sentence without evidence of emotion.

NOW AT PEACE.

Hatchet of War Buried Between the United States and Spain.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The condition of war which has existed between the United States and Spain since April 21, 1898, terminated yesterday when the last formalities in the restoration of peace were performed by the exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty. Coincident with this President McKinley issued his proclamation declaring that the war was at an end and the appointment of Bellamy Storer was determined upon as United States minister to Spain.

After the ceremony connected with the exchange of the ratification of the treaty President McKinley issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, The treaty of peace between the United States of America and her majesty, the queen regent of Spain, in the name of her august son, Don Alfonso XIII, was concluded and signed by their respective plenipotentiaries at Paris on the 10th day of December, 1898, the original of which convention being in the English and Spanish languages, is word for word.

And, whereas, the said convention has been duly ratified on both parts and the ratifications of the two governments were exchanged in the city of Washington on the eleventh day of April, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.

Now, therefore be it known that I, William McKinley, president of the United States of America, have caused the said convention to be made public to the end that the same and every article and clause thereof may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States and the citizens thereof.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this eleventh day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-third.

By the president.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Perils of the Monitor at Sea.

The monitor is essentially a harbor defence vessel, and its great advantage lies in the fact that so little of the vessel is out of water, making armor protection possible and effective, with little weight, and enabling a heavy battery to be carried on comparatively small displacement, which means small dimensions and light draught.

The small amount of exposed hull means a low freeboard. This renders speed practically unattainable. The Monterey, with 4,000 tons displacment, has, say, 30 inches freeboard; draught of water, 14 feet. In smooth water, at 10½ knots, the wave comes over the bow. At full power, 5,200 horse, the depth of water above the stem is about 7 feet, and at the forward barbette the water is 18 inches deep on deck. Speed, therefore, is out of the question.—G W. Dickie, in The Engineering Magazine for April.

The Name of Gettisburg.

HARRISBURG, April 6. —In a letter which Governor Stone to-day wrote to W.S. Grenoble, of Gettysburg, declining to sign a petition addressed to the secretary of the navy urging that one of the new cruisers be named the "Gettysburg" the executive said:

"If naming a cruiser 'Gettysburg' would alone honor and distinguish the excellent town of that name, I would not hesitate to join you in this request; but to the whole country and to the civilized world that name typifies a great battle which settled a controversy between the north and south of our country. To both sections it recalled a great heroic struggle. The victory was with the north, the defeat with the south.

"In the recent war with Spain the north and the south were blended as one in defense of our flag. Our battleships and cruisers are named by sailors and marines from both the north and the south and I do not think it wise that a name should be selected for any of our vessels which will revive the unpleasantness which grew out of the civil war and existed for so many years.

"Let Gettysburg be honored and revered as the state of a great battle wherein the survivors of the northern army and the survivors of the southern army can alike uphold the valor of their comrades. I am not in favor of giving any vessel in our navy a name which will distinguish a battle fought by Americans against Americans.'

TO AVENGE BAKERS DEATH

FIFTEEN MEN NOW UNDER ARREST

Judge W. H. Brawley delivered an impressive Charge. He did so he said owing to the gravity of the case

TWO MEN TURN STATE'S EVIDENCE.

Charleston, S. C., April 8.—In the United States Circuit Court here Friday Judge W. H. Brawley, presiding, a true bill was found by the Grand Jury against thirteen of the men accused of lynching Frazer B. Baker at Lake City, S. C. February 22, 1898.

Fifteen men are under arrest, but no explanation of the dropping of two names from the indictment was given. Before giving the case out Judge Brawley delivered an impressive charge. He did so, he said, owing to the gravity of the case.

The crime was one of the blackest ever perpetrated in South Carolina, he said, and it was the duty of the Government to prosecute to the fullest extent any or all of the men who might have been implicated in its commission. The jury retired and brought in the bill after being out less than an houa.

The indictment they signed was prepared in the United States District Attorney's office. It fills fifty typewritten pages and sets forth at great length the incidents of the Lake City lynching.

It will be remembered that on the night of February 22, 1898, a mob went to the house of Postmaster Frazer B. Baker, colored, who was obnoxious to the people of the town. Oil was poured on shavings piled against the house and fire set to it. When Baker, his wife and child tried to escape, he and his infant daughter were killed, while his wife and two other children were seriously wounded by men shooting at them from the woods

The men on trial now are Martin Ward, W. A. Webster, Ezra McKnight, Henry Stokes, Henry Goodwin, Monitrie Epps, Charles D. Jayner, Oscar Kelly, Marion Clark, Alonzo Rodgers, Edwin M. Rodgers, Joseph P. Newham and Early P. Lee, merchants and farmers of Lake City and vicinity.

The last two men mentioned have turned State's evidence The trial will begin Monday.

Another great discovery has been made and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz. Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at F. Potts Green's Drug Store.

Sam Graham Killed.

Samuel Graham, a corporal in Co. B, was instantly killed Friday morning about 10 o'clock while handling dynamite in his father's store at Philipsburg. There are several stories afloat as to how the accident happened. It is said he accidently let a stick of dynamite fall to the floor where it exploded with terrific force. The young man's body was badly torn up and death was instantaneous.

The news of this sad accident was a great shock to his many friends and acquaintances in this place, where he was well and favorably known.

Samuel Graham was about 29 years of age and was a son of A. J. Graham, a prominent hardware merchant of Philipsburg, Pa. He was a graduate of the State College and was a great lover of athletics. As a foot ball and base ball player there were few better in this part of the state. During the war with Spain he served as a member of Co. B, 5th Penusylvania Volunteers. He was a cousin of Miss Lizzie Morrison of this place.

LATER—A telephone dispatch from Philipsburg gives the following particulars of the death of Sam Graham. Some men were blowing stumps out of the ground with dynamite and Mr. Graham was in the act of photographing the explosion when a piece of a stump struck him killing him almost instantly.

IF Hobart runs again next year, he will be the first Vice-President renominated in fifty years.

A Giant at His Winter Home.

Eleanor above Punxsutawney, probably has the largest giant in the United States, in the person of "Colonel" Cooper. His height is eight feet four inches, and he weighs over 300 pounds. He is a foreigner, but became a citizen of the United States by taking out papers at Brookville a few days ago. Cooper travels with a show in the summer and makes his home at Eleanor in the winter.

A MONTHLY REPORT

Of the Young Men's Christian Association.

One month ago last Wednesday Roger T. Bayard took charge of the Young Men's Christian Association, and during that month a close account of the attendance of the boys and men were kept. He was appointed Secretary on the 4th day of March which come on Saturday, and on the following Sunday the meeting was led by Rev. Dr. Holloway. The meeting was not advertised at all, but nevertheless 40 men were present. The next Sundays meeting March 11th was led by Rev. Elmer Williams, who is a fluent and eloquent talker, and a thoroughly consecrated christian young man, at that meeting 140 men were present. The following Sundays meeting March 19th was led by Rev. Thomas Levan Bickle of the Reformed church who spoke on the subject of "Personal Purity" 110 men were out at this meeting. Sunday March 26th, the meeting was led by Rev. C. L. Goodling. 125 men attended and much interest was shown as a very deep impression was made on the people by the leader. The following Sunday April 2, a large union meeting was held in the Court House. This meeting was led by Elmer Williams the young man spoken of above. 750 men, women and children were crowded into this large room and some were turned away. The monthly report is as follows:

Week ending	March	11.....900
"	"	19.....928
"	"	26.....770
"	April	2.....869
Total		3467

This report does not include the free Graphophone entertainment which was given to the boys on Friday evening March 30, at which 300 were present. Nor does it include the Gospel meeting on Sunday April 2nd. Now are the people of Bellefonte going to support this institution where thousands of young men visit? or are they going to let them spend their evenings in the saloon or in some other questionable place, where the name of Jesus Christ is never mentioned to them.

Take an interest in the work and help along an institution that is helping young men to live better lives.

Services for Catholic Dead.

Washington, April 6.—Cardinal Gibbons has applied to the War Department for permission to have Catholic services at the interment of the bodies of the soldiers who died in Cuba and Porto Rico at Arlington today. The Department had already arranged to have the services conducted by Post Chaplain Freeland, from Fort Monroe, an Episcopalian, but has acceded to Cardinal Gibbons request so far as the Catholic dead are concerned

A CARNIVAL OF DEATH

LYNCHING PROMPTLY FOLLOWS

The Culprits taken from the Sheriff in open Day light and hanged to a tree by a crowd of white men.

THE RESULT OF AN OLD GRUDGE

Macon, Miss., April 7.—T. H. Clelland, a substantial farmer residing on the Johnson place, in northeastern portion of this (Noxubee) County, was found dead in his bed Wednesday morning, having been murdered by being choked to death.

Thursday the Coroner held an inquest on the body, resulting in a verdict charging that Clelland came to his death at the hands of two negroes, Mose Anderson and Forest Jamison, as a result of a grudge they had against him on account of a mortgage Clelland held on a horse belonging to the negroes.

About 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, after the verdict had been given, a crowd numbering seventy five prominent white men assembled, and, taking the negroes away from the Sheriff, placed them on mules with ropes around their necks, and, after tying the other end to the limb of a tree, the mules were driven from under the tree, leaving the negroes to die by strangulation.

No attempt at disguise whatever was made by the mob, the hanging being done by citizens in open daylight as a retribution for the murder of a good citizen. A third, Henry Cunningham, was afterward arrested on suspicion of being an accomplice to the murder, and is now in jail at this place, but it is not yet proved that he is guilty.

The body of Clelland was Thursday shipped back to his former home in Kentucky, he having moved here from the North about one year ago.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I.T He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved, that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by F. Potts Green Druggist. Guaranteed.

Bill to Protect Hotel Guests.

Albany, April 7.—Senator Coggeshall introduced a bill Thursday to provide for the better protection against fires in hotels. The bill amends the domestic commerce law by adding a new section which compels hotel keepers who run hotels that are not fireproof and exceed two stories in height to provide one hand chemical fire extinguisher for every five rooms, so placed as to be equally accessible from each of the five rooms.

Elected a Colored Moderator.

PITTSBURG, April 6.—Pittsburg presbytery on Tuesday, for the first time in its history, elected a colored man for moderator. He is Rev. M. B. Lanier, pastor of Grace Memorial church, of this city. After an exceedingly lively debate the presbytery declined, by a vote of 44 to 6, to adopt an overture to the next General Assembly asking that body to follow up its action of last year in the case of Dr. C. A. McGiffert, professor in Union seminary, New York, with such additional action as it might think necessary to preserve the church from the effect of his criticism of the New Testament.

The policy The Ladies' Home Journal, Philadelphia in its religious department, seems to be always to engage the pen of the man most immediately prominent in the eyes of the religious world. Thus it has had the services of Mr. Beecher, Doctor Talmage, Doctor Parkhurst, Ian Maclaren, and now it will have those of Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, the new pastor of Plymouth Church, in Brooklyn. Doctor Hillis has given the Journal a series of articles upon which he had been working for over a year previous to his Eastern call, and the first of these articles will be published in the next issue of the magazine. The series is all connected in thought, and presents the general subject of "The Secrets of a Happy Life."

"Thanks."

Some kind unknown friend had a very nice new table placed in the W. C. T. U. parlor. Many thanks to the donator, for it was one of the things we just wanted. If any one else who feels generously inclined to the society, would like to know something else we need, chairs, good substantial chairs, to take the place of many whose "best days are over" and have become rather shaky, would be most acceptable. Won't a few other friends remember us with the same generous spirit? Members of W. C. T. U.

The insurgents at Harrisburg are always sure to fail in their predictions.

The artist who is in search of attitudes descriptive of torture, and poses depicting suffering, need not go to the Christian martyrs of old. If he could only see through the walls into tens of thousands of homes all over this land, he would see women undergoing tortures in silence without complaining, before which the brief ordeals of the martyrs pale into nothingness.

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangement of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. One of the worst effects of troubles of this kind is upon the nervous system. The tortures so bravely endured completely and effectually shatter the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing cure for all weakness and disease of the feminine organism. It makes it strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It checks exhausting drains and tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Good medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

"Since my last child was born, thirteen years ago, I have suffered from uterine trouble," writes Mrs. Paul Devraine, of Jellico, Campbell Co., Tenn. "I consulted several doctors and took much medicine, but found no relief. I had very bad health for twelve years. Every month I was in bed a week before the monthly period and a week after. I was obliged to keep in bed for four months last summer. I was just like a corpse. I lost twenty-six pounds in four months. I was coughing so much I was considered in consumption. I suffered severely from pains in my back, bearing down pains in the womb, chills and cold sweats. After taking four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery my coughing stopped, and after six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription my periods became regular and were passed without pain. Now I am fleshy, more so than ever before. My neighbors are surprised to see me in such good health after having seen me so low."

It's True.

The prosperity of a town is not guided by the wealth of its inhabitants but of the uniformity with which they pull together when an important duty is to be accomplished. A man with a thousand dollars at his command and an interest in the welfare of his town at heart can do more for the building and improving of it, than a millionaire who locks up his capital and snaps his finger at home progress.

Pill Age.

Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills, 10 cents a vial, are planned after the most modern in medical science. They are as great an improvement over the 50 year old strong pill formula as a bicycle is over an ox-cart in travel. They never gripe and they never fail—40 doses 10 cents —59

THURSDAY NIGHT'S MEETING.

The Court House Packed and Many Turned Away.

The evangelistic meeting in the court house Thursday evening attracted such a large crowds to the building that many were unable to gain admittance. Mr. Weeden conducted a song service, after which Mr. Weaver delivered one of his soul inspiring sermons. The meeting was greatly enjoyed by all who attended.

Mr. Weaver intends going back to London, where this summer a concerted movement will be carried out in holding evangelistic services. It is the intention to have these meetings held in ten large tents about two miles apart. In the fall a large building will be secured, in which the meetings will be held during the winter season. Mr. Weaver is anxious to take Mr. Weeden along, and the latter is now carefully considering the matter.

Dewey Day Proclamation.

HARRISBURG, April 6.—Governor Stone yesterday issued the following proclamation:

By authority of the concurrent resolution of the legislature of Pennsylvania, approved March 21, 1899, which recognizes Monday, May 1, 1899, as the first anniversary of the victory of the American squadron commanded by Admiral George Dewey, in which the Spanish fleet was sunk in Manila harbor, one of the greatest achievements in naval warfare the world has ever known, and to enable the people of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania to take part with the citizens of other states in the proper observance of said day.

I. William A. Stone, governor of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby name Monday, May 1, 1899, as Dewey Day and designate the same as a legal holiday and recommend to the people of the state its proper observance.

Parsnip Complexion.

A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced to kidney trouble. It pervades all classes of society, in all climates, regardless of age, sex or condition.

The sallow, colorless looking people you often meet are afflicted with "kidney complexion." Their kidneys are turning to a parsnip color, so is their complexion. They may suffer from indigestion, bloating, sleeplessness, uric acid, gravel, dropsy, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, or irregular heart. You may depend upon it, the cause is weak, unhealthy kidneys.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble and both need the same remedy. Dr. Kilmers Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy will build up and strengthen weak and unhealthy kidneys, purify the diseased, kidney poisoned blood, clear the complexion and soon help the sufferer to better health.

The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, such as weak kidneys, catarrh of the bladder, gravel rheumatism and Bright's Disease which is the worst form of kidney trouble. At druggists fifty cent and dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y.

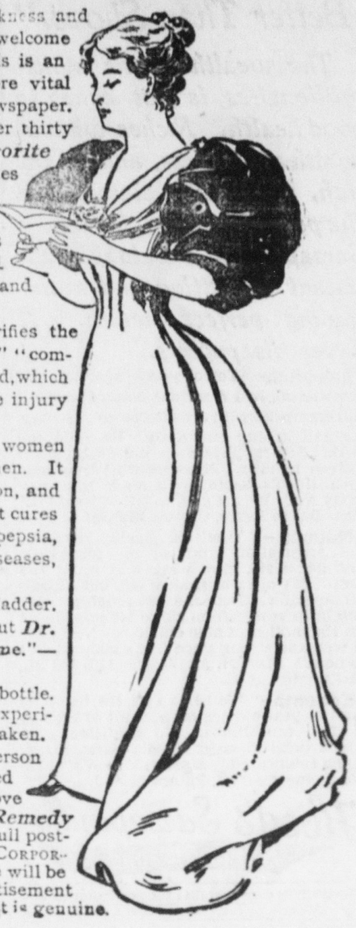
Welcome News



Any information that tells how sickness and disease can be overcome is the most welcome news a paper can print. Although this is an advertisement, it contains facts of more vital importance than anything else in this newspaper.

It tells of a medicine known for over thirty years as Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. It is a medicine that purifies the Blood, and restores the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs to vigor and strength. Its principal ingredient is not alcohol. It does not ruin men's and women's lives by causing intoxication and fostering the appetite for strong drink.

Favorite Remedy cools and purifies the blood. It is not like the many "bitters," "compounds" and "tonics," now so widely sold, which heat and inflame the blood, doing more injury than good.

Favorite Remedy cures troubles of women just as certainly as it cures troubles of men. It restores the Liver to a healthy condition, and cures the worst cases of Constipation. It cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, all Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases, Gravel, Diabetes and Bright's Disease.

"My complaint was Stone in the Bladder. Physicians said my case was hopeless, but Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured me."—D. H. HOAG, Lebanon Springs, N. Y.

FIFTY-EIGHT YEARS OLD.

It's a long life, but devotion to the true interests and prosperity of the American People has won for it new friends as the years rolled by and the original members of its family passed to their reward, and these admirers are loyal and steadfast today, with faith in its teachings, and confidence in the information which it brings to their homes and firesides.

As a natural consequence it enjoys in its old age all the vitality and vigor of its youth, strengthened and ripened by the experiences of over half a century. It has lived on its merits, and on the cordial support of progressive Americans.

It is "The New York Weekly Tribune," acknowledged the country over as the leading National family newspaper.

Recognizing its value to those who desire all the news of the State and Nation, the publisher of the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN (your own favorite home paper) has entered into an alliance with "The New York Weekly Tribune" which enables him to furnish both papers at the trifling cost of $1.50 per year.

Every farmer and every villager owes to himself to his family, and to the community in which he lives a cordial support of his local newspaper, as it works constantly and untiringly for his interests in every way, brings to his home all the news and happenings of his neighborhood, the doings of his friends, the condition and prospects for different crops, the prices in home markets, and, in fact, is a weekly visitor which should be found in every wide awake, progressive family.

Just think of it! Both of these papers for only $1.50 a year.

NEWS FROM MANILA!

General MacArthur Makes a Reconnoisance.

DISCOVERS ONE THOUSAND REBELS

RAINY SEASON AND ITS EFFECTS

MANILA, April 4—4.45 A. M.—General MacArthur reconnoitred in force this morning, with the Montana regiment, the Fourth cavalry and two guns of the light artillery, as far as the river north of Malolos. The reconnoisance developed the fact that there are full 1,000 rebels, armed with Mauser rifles, preparing for defense. Shots were exchanged and two of the Montana regiment were wounded, but there was no engagement. Later in the day General MacArthur moved northward, as the water supply of Malolos is inadequate.

The belief is spreading among the residents here that the effect of the capture of Malolos, the former rebel capital, followed by the proclamation of the United States Philippine commission, will be to convince the natives that Agninaldo's bubble has burst. The proclamation expresses the president's good will, promises needful reforms in all departments of the government, asserts the aim of the United States to be the welfare and the elevation of the Filipinos. It says the supremacy of the United States must and will be enforced throughout every part of the archipeligo, and those who resist it can accomplish no end other than their own ruin. The most ample liberty of self government will be granted to the Philippine people which is reconcilable with the maintenance of wise, just, stable and effective and economical administration of public affairs and compatible with the sovereign and international rights and obligations of the United States.

Dr. Schurman, president of the commission said:

"The Filipinos have been asking unceasingly What do you propose to do for us.' The proclamation answers the question and it should satisfy them."

Colonel Charles Denby, member of the commission and former minister to China, remarked: "It is the most important proclamation since the declaration of independence. Spanish, Tagalo, and English versions have been printed and it is proposed to circulate them about Malolos and at all the seaports. They will be sent to the lake towns by gunboats.

MANILA, April 5.—9.30 A. M.—The insurgents are massing their troops north of Calumpit, about five and a half miles northwest of Malolos, and, according to the observations of the reconnoitreing parties they have fine entrenchments there. It is expected that hard fighting will be necessary to dislodge them at that point and at San Fernando, where Aguinaldy is supposed to be.

The Secret Of Power.

Said Rev. Lyman Abbott, to the University of Pennsylvania students. "I propose to speak to you of the secret of power, for the success of your lives will depend upon your understanding of power. Achievement depends on power, whether this achievement be physical, intellectual, moral, spiritual, or in any other form. The secret of power in the material form consists in our ability to lay hold of the forces in nature. The real reason why the American navy beat the Spanish navy is because we have learned to use God's projectiles, and they have not learned in Spain. We have been taught how to lay hold of the muscles of the Almighty and this knowledge is the fulcrum by which God and man work together to elevate the human race. It is said that seven men labor to feed a thousand. This may or may not be true, but I think it can safely be said that through civilization, ninety per cent of humanity are left free to serve in the grander interests of education, lifting to higher levels their less fortunate fellow. The secret of civilization is the power within ourselves that makes for material welfare,

"You are on eagle's wings, and are looking into life. Presently you will be out of the university and start on your race. Now you are full of zeal, of hope, of enthusiasm; but there will surely come a time when all the joy will seem to have gone, when you seem to have lived a life of failure and disappointment, when life seems not worth living for.

This is the greatest thing of all, to keep on walking when roads are dry and dusty, and when the day is hot—to run the race that is set before you without faltering. If you are worth anything, the time will come when, like Elijah, you will sit down under a tree and say, 'Take away my life.' But blessed be you if at that time you can hear a still, small voice, and rise up into health and strength again.

What has this country a right to look for from its educated young men? Knowledge and skill in the use of material things in life, that the rest may be lifted up; wisdom to see what are the great divine principles of social and industrial action and to formulate them into the permanent law of the nation of which you are a part; vision to see the weakness and strength, the needs and resources of your country and courage to lead. With God in your hearts, knowledge, skill, wisdom and courage will surely find their place."

ASK YOUR DOCTOR!

Ask your physician this question, "What is the one great remedy for consumption?" He will answer, "Cod-liver oil." Nine out of ten will answer the same way.

Yet when persons have consumption they loathe all fatty foods, yet fat is necessary for their recovery and they cannot take plain cod-liver oil. The plain oil disturbs the stomach and takes away the appetite. The disagreeable fishy odor and taste make it almost unendurable. What is to be done?

This question was answered when we first made of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Although that was nearly twenty-five years ago, yet it stands alone today the one great remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

The bad taste and odor have been taken away, the oil itself has been partly digested, and the most sensitive stomach objects to it rarely. Not one in ten can take and digest the plain oil. Nine out of ten can take SCOTT'S EMULSION and digest it. That's why it cures so many cases of early consumption. Even in advanced cases it brings comfort and greatly prolongs life.

ALFRED SPEER,

THE ORIGINAL

Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

—The state of Nebraska has marked an epoch in its history by repealing the State Bounty law on tree planting, passed only twenty years ago. In the interval Nebraska has been transformed from a desert to a garden, and the necessity for timber cultivation no longer exists. The course of this western state in this matter is in marked contrast with the policy which in the state of New York has permitted forest destruction and which allows the Paper Trust to continue its vandalism unchecked. A treeless state is necessarily a desert. All other states can afford to learn a lesson from Nebraska.

Interesting Letter from Our Washington Correspondent.

TO ISSUE PEACE PROCLAMATION

To Notify the World Officially that Spain and the United States are at Peace The Payment of $20.000.000 to Speedily Follow.

A GIFT FROM PRESIDENT FAURE

President *Mc*Kinley will this week issued a proclamation notifying the world officially that Spain and the U. S. are at peace. The treaty signed by the Queen Regent of Spain is already in Washington and the French Ambassador, acting for Spain, will arrange for the ceremony of exchanging the treaty. This ceremony will, unless present plans are changed, take place in the White House. It will be interesting, but brief. The copy of the treaty ratified by Spain will be handed to the President and the copy of the treaty ratified by the U. S. Senate, will be handed to the French Ambassador, as the representative of Spain. The payment of the $20,000,000 called for by the treaty will speedily follow, but it is not likely that the French Ambassador will have anything to do with that Being a business matter, it will probably be settled by the notification to the government of Spain that its accredited agent can collect the money at some European bank, in which it will be deposited by this government. So much time has been taken up by witnesses whose testimoney has been practically the same that the Military Court of Inquiry has announced that it will hear no more witnesses except those who have something new to offer. Gen. Shafter has reached Washington, in obedience to a summons, and will be heard this week. Gen. Miles may also be heard again. There are all sorts of rumors as to the report that the Court will make, but none of them have any more substantial basis than guesses based upon the evidence as a whole. The guess most likely to prove true is that the report will recommend that the purchase of canned roast beef for the army should be stopped. The evidence against its unfitness for food is overwhelming. It has not been proven that the refrigerated beef issued to the army was chemically treated, although it has been shown that it is a common practice for fresh meats to be so treated and sold in the markets of the country.

Ever since the bill authorizing twelve new warships became a law there has been a good natured but spirited rivalry among the friends of various states and cities, to give their names to the new ships. The law provides that battleships and armored cruisers shall be named after states, and cruisers after cities. After consulting with Secretary Long., President McKinley announced the following as the names chosen: for battleships Pennsylvania New Jersey and Georgia, for armored cruisers West Virginia, Nebraska and California, for cruisers Denver, DesMoines, Chattanooga, Galveston, Tacoma, and Cleveland.

Here is an official communication received by the department of State from the U. S. Minister to Venezuela, which should be carefully read by those who grumble about the expense of keeping U. S. warships in foreign waters. It relates to the recent visit of the U. S. S. Wilmington to the ports on the northern coast of Venzuela. "The splendid condition and appearance of the men and the boat," writes the Minister, " never failed to call forth praise from those who saw them.

As a result of the trip, I think it will be found that American prestige has been substantially augmented, and the idea of American power and resources, vitalized by the war enormously deepened and widened. Practical results are coming, too, in the way of increased commerce with the U. S. and if our merchants and manufacturers will take advantage of the favorable conditions that have been created for them, they ought to profit very largely."

President *Mc*Kinley is leaving nothing undone that he thinks will maintain or add to the existing good feeling between the North and the South. His latest act in that line was to accept an invitation to attend an encampment and reunion of ex-Confederates, under the control of the Daughters of the Confederacy, to be held at Falls Church, Va, June 7th and 8th, and to deliver an address.

The White House has two handsome new and permanent ornaments in the shape of a pair of magnificent Sevres China vases, made by order of the late President Faure, of France, expressly to be presented to the American people and government as souvenirs of the opening of the new Franco American cable, over which President McKinley and President Faure exchanged the first messages. The presentation was made by Ambassador Cambon to President *Mc*Kinley, in the blue room of the White House, where the vases are to remain. In President *Mc*Kinley's address, accepting them, he said: " In the name of my countrymen I accept the gift you offer. Those beautiful vases, typical of one of the most celebrated arts of France will remain in the Nation's care as an evidence of the friendly sentiments of the French government and people towards the U. S. and as a token of the auspicious event the designed to commemorate." The vases and pedestals, are about six feet high and nothing handsomer of the kind has ever been seen in Washington.

Regardless of embalmed beef experiences, nearly seventy five per cent of the men enlisting in the regular army are volunteers of the late war.

Carter Harrison has been elected Mayor of Chicago and now his friends are thinking of booming him for President of the United States. It is a long jump to make.

The Ills of Children.

Dr. Hartman offers his advice to parents on the treatment of coughs and colds.

LEARN to guard against colds. Nearly all the ills of children begin with taking cold. If your child catches cold don't wait a moment before attacking that cold.

To the ignorance or neglect of parents is due the fatal termination of many children's complaints.

If you are not informed as to the proper course to pursue to drive off a child's cold, write to Dr. Hartman, president of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, O., for advice, and ask for some of his free books which contain the most pertinent facts about colds and coughs and all catarrhal diseases.

Pe-ru-na, Dr. Hartman's great prescription, is wholly vegetable. It wards off colds entirely if taken at the beginning in proper doses. It breaks up settled colds quickly; it is scientific and safe; there is no mystery about it. Dr. Hartman's books tell just how it acts and why. All druggists sell it.

Mrs. C. T. Rogers, Elgin, Ill., says: Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR:—"Your medicine saved my baby's life. We stopped all treatment but yours, and now he is a beautiful boy. It was certainly a miracle."

Mrs. Becking, East Toledo, O., writes to the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co.:

DEAR SIRS:—"Pe-ru-na is the best medicine I ever had in my house. My children had a bad cough, and one of them had the lung fever. I cured them all with Pe-ru-na."

Proper knowledge of the treatment of coughs and colds is of the first importance to parents. This knowledge is offered free. All catarrhal diseases succumb to Pe-ru-na.

The Vice Presidents Health.

New York, April 11.—The Herald says: Alber A. Wilcox, law partner and business associate of Garret A. Hobart, has just returned from Washington and last night made an authoritative statement as to the health of the vice president. "Aside from the doctors and nurses and Mrs. Hobart," Mr. Wilcox says, "I was the first person allowed to see Mr. Hobart. As it was, I was only allowed to see him on condition that I would not remain in his room more than five minutes and would not mention business. Even President McKinley is not allowed to see the vice President.

"The great trouble is that if Mr. Hobart talks even a little, a violent paroxysm of coughing follows, continuing until he is completely exhausted and sleep becomes impossible. Until this sickness Mr. Hobart no matter what the excitement of the day may have been never knew what it was not to be able to sleep the moment his head touched the pillow. No mail matter is allowed to reach him, and his wife and physicians are devotedly working to protect him from friends."

A LIVING AND A LIFE.

There is wide difference between working for a living and working for life—that is taking up an occupation as if it were to be one's life work. The man, or the boy or girl, who works merely for a living—to gain his daily bread—may perform his task honestly and well, he may give good return for the money which he receives, but he is apt not to look very far ahead. He earns his daily or weekly or monthly wages, and that is enough for him. He has made his living. But he who takes up a likework wants to know what that lifework will do for him by and by, and he wants it to do more for him when he is old than it does now while he is young. And so he is not content with learning enough about his trade to enable him to do his daily task and hold his present situation. He tries to become himself master of it, and to rise higher and higher till he stands at the top.

But this is not all; there is a better and nobler distinction than this The man who is intent on his lifework, and not merely on his living will take an interest in doing it well not alone for what it will do for him but for the work itself, and of the benefit that it may bring to others. And so it helps to give strength and purpose and happiness to his life, and at the same time it yields him a better income than though he struggled simply for a living.—Young Peopls's Weekly.

It is believed by friends of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Miss Virginia Fair, who were recently married in New York, that they can worry along on fifteen million dollars for awhile without any relatives assistance.

A PRINCIPLE THE ONLY SAFE GUIDE.

A principle is always a safer guide than a rule. This is not merely applicable in the sphere of morals. It is true in the realm of business expediency and of matters of every day life. A principle of action is a seed that decides the character and form of every branch and leaf that grows out of the root that springs from the seed. If one bases his judgment on the look of a single twig or leaf of a tree, he may be deceived through its peculiarity or imperfectness, but if he knows the seed from which came the root of that tree, he need not doubt as to its nature or character. A certain course of action may seem likely to bring profitable results to one who ventures on it; but, if that supposed course is not in accordance with a known principle operative in that realm appearances and seeming probabilities should go for naught. No course is a safe one unless it is based on a sound principle action. Yet there are many who think they are doing right, in the realm of finance, of trade, of manufactures, of morals, and spiritual forces, when they are governed by what seem likely to produce the best results in that sphere without its recognized conformity to a sound basal principle in that realm. This is always a mistake. Conformity to a right principle is a surer guide than the strongest evidence of the eyes, the ears, and the inclinations. It is, in fact the only safe guide.—Sunday School Times.

Clinton County Coal Lands.

The negotiations that have been pending for a long time for the lease of several thousand acres of land of A. H. Mann, W. A. Simpson and the Noyes estate in Leidy township Clinton county, were closed Friday and all the papers relating to the transaction have been signed and entered for record in the office of the Register and recorder for that county.

The agreement for the lease as recorded gives to the operation to be known as the Clinton Coal Company the right to mine all the coal upon or under six tracts of land in Leidy township aggregating 4,486 acres. The corporation will develop the lands and agree to mine 100,000 tons of coal annually during the two years beginning October 1st, 1869. and at least 150,000 annually after October 1st, 1901. The lands which the syndicate have leased are situated along Kettle Creek near Westport and the enterprise means much for that place, as well as for all of that section of Clinton county.

Life Imprisonment for Debt.

Judge Blair in the Hudson county court has rendered a decision in which he declares that in the future any man who s imprisoned in New Jersey for debt must remain in prision for life unless some special provision is made by Congress for a release. His decision holds that the Federal bankruptcy act supersedes the State insolvency law, under which a man may be released from jail on delivering all his property into court for the benefit of his creditors, and that the Federal act makes no provision for the release from jail of such persons as may have incarcerated under civil process issuing out of the State courts.

The new decision was rendered in the case of Joseph Schnitzer, a second hand furniture dealer doing business near the Five Corners, Jersey City.

TO BE DEPENDED ON.

Because it is the Experience of a Bellefonte Citizen and Can Readily be Investigated.

A stranger lost in a large city would place far more dependence on the directions given him by a local resident than the guidance of another stranger like himself. This is a natural consequence of experience; it's like a ship in a strange port—a trusty pilot familiar with the harbor is always called upon to bring her safely to her moorings. So it is with endorsement; we doubt the sayings of people living at di tantpoints because we can't investigate, but pub expression of local citizens can be depended on, for 'tis an easy matter to prove it. Evidence like the following is beyond dispute:

Mr. G. H. Bradt, of 121 Penn street, gardener, says:—"I had a lame back and pains over my kidneys. I was at times so lame it was most painful to straighten up after sitting or stooping and any lifting or turning suddenly hurt me exceedingly. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills, saw some Bellefonte people who had been cured by using them and I procured a box from F. Potts Green's drug store. They removed the troubles."

"Durability is Better Than Show."

The wealth of the multimillionaires is not equal to good health. Riches without health are a curse, and yet the rich, the middle classes and the poor alike have, in Hood's Sarsaparilla, a valuable assistant in getting and maintaining perfect health. It never disappoints.

Scrofula—"Three years ago our son, now eleven, had a serious case of scrofula and erysipelas with dreadful sores, discharging and itching constantly. He could not walk. Several physicians did not help for sixteen months. Three months' treatment with Hood's Sarsaparilla made him perfectly well. We are glad to tell others of it." MRS. DAVID LAIRD, Ottawa, Kansas.

Nausea—"Vomiting spells, dizziness and prostration troubled me for years. Had neuralgia, grew weak and could not sleep. My age was against me, but Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me thoroughly. My weight increased from 125 to 143 pounds. I am the mother of nine children. Never felt so well and strong since I was married as I do now." MRS. M. A. WATERS, 1529 33d St., Washington, D. C.

Eczema—"We had to tie the hands of our two year old son on account of eczema on face and limbs. No medicine even helped until we used Hood's Sarsaparilla, which soon cured." MRS. A. VAN WYCK, 123 Montgomery Street, Paterson, N. J.

Wore Uniform to Help Crime.

ALLENTOWN, April 8.—A gay young fellow, who represented himself as a recruiting officer, and who gave his name variously as Robert A. Savage and Paul Lawson, is held under arrest here as a deserter from the United States army.

Savage has been living for some time at the expense of hotel proprietors and confiding ministers and other citizens in Phillipsburg and Lambertville, N. J., Easton, Hazelton, Allentown, and probably numerous other towns if the charges against him are true. His plan of procedure in each place has been similar. He reaches a town, announces that he will open a recruiting office for the army in a short time ingratiates himself with people, borrows money and departs suddenly, leaving unpaid due bills and hotel bills. To vary the monotony of this he is charged with forging the names of hotelkeepers to checks and securing the cash for them.

He succeeded rather easily in his fraudulent career until he reached Hazelton this morning. There he was arrested at the instance of an Allentown hotel man. In this city he had secured half a hundred enlistments and several hundred dollars from people he had made his friends by his gracious manners. Last night he fled the town, leaving an unpaid board bill of $50.

The victimized landlord had him arrested in Hazleton, obtained the amount of his board bill and gave him his freedom. The recruiting officer had been released only a few moments, however, when he was again taken into custody, a dispatch calling for his arrest as a deserter. It is not likely that he will escape so easily from punishment for this new crime charged against him.

A young man, who gave his name as Burke, who was associated with Savage or Lawson for a short time in this city, but who disappeared Saturday morning, was arrested last night at Emaus, He is charged with swindling.

Consumption of Lumber.

Professor John Moyer, in a lecture at the Northeast Manual Training school, Philadelphia, in speaking on "Where Our Lumber Comes From," declared that Pennsylvania had already crossed the danger line in cutting down her forests. "If all the lumber used in the city of Philadelphia last year," he said "were piled on one of our city squares, and packed perfectly solid, it would make a pile as large as the city hall 203 feet high. Again, if it were loaded on flat cars, 10,000 feet to the car, and these cars were made into one train, the lumber train would extend from Philadelphia clear through the state of Pennsylvania into Ohio. To bring the illustrations to figures, this city used last year, for all purposes, over 400,000,000 feet of lumber.

"Much of our white pine comes from Michigan and Wisconsin, because our own supply of that timber is practically exhausted. A great deal of the yellow pine we use comes from North Carolina and Georgia; but the supply of hemlock comes altogether from our own state. Pennsylvania sent to market in 1797, the last year for which we have any statistics, 1,350,000,000 feet of hemlock. Potter county alone producing one-third of the amount."

A Scotchman living in Virginia supplies all the eggs for the President's table in Washington. His hens must be of the Macduff variety.

The Washington Star has concluded that it is impossible for Philadelphia to purify its drinking water by running it through politics.

Dewey's Good Sense.

New York, April 11.—Admiral Dewey has given to the Manila correspondent of Leslie's Weekly an interview regarding the suggestion that the admiral be made a candidate for the presidency next year.

The admiral said as to his politics:

"I am a sailor. A sailor has no politics. The administration is his party, and, republican or democratic, it makes no difference. Then again I came from Vermont, and you know what that means. To be anything but a republican in Vermont is to be a man without a party. My flag lieutenant comes from Georgia. He tells me that to be anything but a democrat in the south is to be a nobody. If I lived south I would probably be a democrat."

"Have you ever voted?" the correspondent asked.

"Yes, years ago, but my vote was usually influenced by personal preference or local conditions. I am not a politician, have never held political office and am totally ignorant of party intricacies and affiliations."

Admiral Dewey said that neither by vocation, disposition, education or training was he capacitated to fill the presidency. He said that he was too well along in life to consider such a possibility. His health would not admit it. All his life's work was in different lines of effort, and that, while the kindness and enthusiasm of his friends were grateful to him and the generous tributes of the American people were dear to him, he could not and would not be a candidate for the presidency of the United States under any conditions.

The Late Mr. Early.

"The Late Mr. Early" by James M. Martin, which has been secured as the attraction at the Garman Opera House this Thursday evening has as a member of the organization a young lady who for the past two or three years she has been on the stage has attracted an amount of attention from the critics that rarely falls to the lot of so young an artist. The young lady referred to is Miss Mabel Hite. Beginning her stage career with the Fairmount Stock Company of Kansas City three years ago Miss Hite almost immediately after her accession to the ranks of that organization was promoted to play the leading ingenue and soubrette roles in the many productions that company was then making. To put it mildly, she made a success and her fame commencing to spread led Eastern managers to make her offers, the result of which was, she finally accepted one from the leading circuits of the country. Miss Hite's appearance as a specialty artist proved her remarkable versatility and was a complete triumph. Miss Hite is credited with being possessed of remarkable beauty, grace and magnetism of manner.

The Crop Indications.

The crop indications of 1899 are favorable, and while just now it can only be matter of guess work, it would seem the hope that the satisfactory results of 1898 will be repeated is well founded. Even though the quantity per acre should fall short of what it was last year, the increased acreage, induced by the bounteous crops of last season will, perhaps, more than make up for any shortage that may possibly occur on that account. In speaking of the prospects Secretary of Agriculture Wilson claims warrant for saying, "There seems to be every reason why 1899 will be as good if not a better year than was the last. It looks as though we were bound to swamp the world with our agricultural productions, our meats, and by our dairy products."

JUSTICE FOR GOMEZ.

It is to be hoped that it is true as reported that Gen. Gomez will be asked by the Cuban generals to resume his old position as commander-in-chief, from which he was deposed by the most foolish action of the Assembly. That body having given proof of its preception of its folly by decreeing its own dissolution, it is now only possible for the generals to atone for its criminal blunder by tendering a unanimous request to their old commander to resume his former position. Whether he will do so may be a question If by acceding to the request he can help the disbandment of the troops and further the establishment of good government in Cuba, he will doubtless do so. It can well be understood, however, that he was sorely wounded by the action of the Assembly, and it will not be strange if he should decline to comply with the request of the generals if made. It is to be hoped, however, that he will agree not to leave Cuba for his old home in Santo Domingo. He is needed in Cuba, where his behavior during the past few months has stamped him as a real lover of the interests of its people, and as a statesman as well as a good soldier.

Gen. Gomez deserves every honor which the Cubans can bestow upon him. He is an aged man and cannot hope to live much longer Before he dies, however, he ought to be the civil as he has been in the past the military chief of the island, and it rests entirely with the Cubans themselves to say whether this shall be possible. The actions of the Cuban Assembly went far to convince Americans that self-government for the island was but a dream, but the conduct of Gen. Gomez has done much to overcome that impression.—Pittsburg Times.

Hungarian Custom.

Neighbors Thursday afternoon found Mrs. John Hudock in a critical condition, says the Sunbury Daily. Last Tuesday was "switching day" on which occason it is the custom of Hungarian husbands to strike their wives over the back with switches in honor of the ending of Lent.

Hudock went home late that night intoxicated. He suddenly recollected that he had failed to chastise his wife. He then procured a club and beat her on the head until her skull was fractured. Hudock grew frightened, fearing that he had fatally wounded his wife. In order to escape arrest he kept the affair a secret, but during his absence from home Thursday several women entered and found Mrs. Hudock in bed.

The authorities are looking for her husband, who disappeared when he learned that the assault was known.

An Elephant Kills His Keeper.

Kansas City, April 12.—"Rajah" a mammoth elephant owned by Lemon Brothers Circus company which has been wintering in Argentine, Kan., near here, Sunday killed its keeper, Frank Fisher. Fisher had returned to the tent intoxicated and tried to make the animals perform. Coming to the elephant he hugged the beast's trunk and ordered it to open its mouth. Becoming enraged "Rajah" crushed Fisher's arm and throwing him to the ground, made repeated efforts to pierce the prostrate trainer's body with its tusks. Unable to reach him, "Rajah" finally knelt upon Fisher, crushing his life out before assistance could arrive. Fisher was 28 years old and his home was in Montreal, Canada. He is said to be "Rajah's" ninth victim

M'KINLEY GRANTS QUAY'S REQUEST.

A Great Battleship to Be Named the "Pennsylvania."

MOST FORMIDABLE SHIP AFLOAT

The President Accedes to the Beaver Statesman's Proposition to Have the Vessel Built on the Delaware and Constructed of Material Furnished From Different Sections of the State.

(Special Correspondence.)

Philadelphia, April 11.—President McKinley has acceeded to the request of Colonel Quay and announces that one of the three new battleships of the first class, authorized by the last congress shall be named Pennsylvania. When he started out to secure this honor for his native state Senator Quay found that for the last of the unchristened ships of war the name of Ohio had been determined upon. To this, as it was the name of the president's own state, Colonel Quay could not well object. He secured a promise from President McKinley that Pennsylvania should be next favored, and the president has carried out this pledge by his last official announcement. The naval appropriation item of the last congress provided for three battleships, three armored cruisers and six unprotected cruisers. New York, always eager for full consideration, failed in an effort to draw a prize this time. The first of the big battleships the president decided shall be named Pennsylvania, and the others shall be known as the New Jersey and the Georgia. The three armored cruisers shall be christened West Virginia, Nebraska and California, and the smaller cruisers will be known as Denver, Des Moines, Chattanooga, Galveston, Tacoma and Cleveland. Considerable presure was brought to bear upon the president and Secretary Long by the officials of different states and cities, and a number have been disappointed. The president and secretary are endeavoring, however, to equalize the distribution of the names among the several sections of the country. The armored cruisers have been named after states for the reason that they are believed to come within the provision of the law requiring "vessels of the first class" to be named after states of the Union.

QUAY ON THE BATTLESHIP.

Commenting upon the action of the president, Senator Quay said yesterday: "I am glad President McKinley has thus honored our state. When we started out to get this battleship it was with the view of making it the most formidable ship of war afloat, and to have it represent in every way the patriotism and the industrial greatness of the Keystone state. The president assured me when the subject was first broached that he was in thorough accord with the project and that we would not have to wait long before our hopes would be realized. It is understood that the vessel shall be built on the Delaware by the Cramps and that her armor plate shall come from the great steel and iron plants in western and central Pennsylvania, and that the great gunmakers at Bethelehem shall furnish her batteries. As far as possible, the furnishings and equipments shall be obtained from Pennsylvania manufacturing establishments. The launching of this splendid craft should be made a gala occasion in the old Keystone state."

The state has been sadly neglected in the naming of warships. Some years ago, when we were beginning to build this new navy of ours, a cruiser was named after Philadelphia. She was then considered a fine ship, although of the unprotected class, but with the present day monsters she bears no comparison, and yet this one little cruiser now at Samoa alone has represented Pennsylvania. The state of New York is recognized by Sampson's and Schley's flagships—the New York and Brooklyn—and the cruisers Buffalo and Albany. Massachusetts has a magnificent battleship, splendid cruisers in the Boston and Marblehead, and gunboats named after Nantucket and Gloucester. There is the battleship Illinois and the cruiser Chicago, while Alabama has a battleship and a cruiser called the Montgomery. And so it goes.

The time has come when Pennsylvania should be given full recognition. The finest of ships are built here on the Delaware, and the armor plates are made here in Pennsylvania. This state turns out everything that goes to make up a ship of war, including engines and guns. It is but fitting, therefore, that Pennsylvania, the great center of ship building, should be awarded a battleship, and it is not too much to ask that Pittsburg, the center of the iron and steel industry, shall have a cruiser named after it in addition.

We have waited a long time for a battleship, but when the Pennsylvania goes into commission we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that there is nothing finer afloat and the Keystone state will owe another debt to Senator Quay.

MARTIN TURNED DOWN.

There has been little of political interest here during the last week further than the action of the new mayor, Mr. Ashbridge, in making sweeping changes in the police department. These are mostly demotions of men who were promoted by Mayor Warwick just before his retirement from office, at the dictation of David Martin. Ashbridge, by his first official acts, has demonstrated that it is his purpose to be mayor of Philadelphia, without having to submit his appointments to David Martin or any other political boss. He will not permit, as Warwick did, his administration to be made an annex to the Martin machine. He has his own ideas of strengthening the Republican party and he proposes to recognize the various leaders who are in touch with the party organization in their respective localities in making appointments. They formerly had to go to Martin to get favors from the mayor's office. Now they go directly to Ashbridge and he decides what shall be done in every case. The adoption of this policy has seriously interfered with the Martin leadership. It means the coming to the front of men like Durham, who believe in the recognition of all elements of the Republican party and who acquire popularity not merely through the distribution of patronage, but by their straightforward and manly actions in dealing with men who take an interest in the welfare of the Republican organization. The Asbridge administration will, by the policy adopted in making appointments, deprive Martin of the power of electing delegates to the Republican state convention in many districts. Martin's affiliation with Flinn and the other bolters at Harrisburg have weakened him here. The big bulk of the delegates to the state convention will be in sympathy with the Republican state organization, which will undoubtedly control the convention.

STALWARTS TRUE TO THEIR COLORS.

Republican Regulars Present an Unbroken Front to Insurgents at Harrisburg.

MORE COUNTIES HEARD FROM.

Venango and Forest Elect Stalwart Delegates to the State Convention, and Snyder and Delaware, Through County Committees, Show Their Sentiments.

(Special Correspondence.)

Harrisburg, April 11.—The legislature will adjourn on the 20th inst., and in the nine days remaining there is promise of some of the most exciting kind of politics. Backed by the sentiment of the great mass of the Republican voters of the commonwealth in favor of party loyalty and regularity, the supporters of Colonel Quay for the United States senatorship have returned from their homes determined to march behind the party's standard to the end of the battle. There will be no surrender to the guerrillas under the leadership of Flinn, of Allegheny, and Martin, of Philadelphia, the discredited city bosses, backed by the financial resources of Wanamakerism, representing the most selfish principles in politics.

During the last few days there has been a preconcerted effort on the part of the newspapers, thriving on the immense advertising patronage of Wanamaker, to place the responsibility for the deadlock upon Colonel Quay. They totally ignore the fact that he is the caucus nominee for senator and that a mere minority has, up to date, prevented the election of the Republican nominee.

ISSUE BEYOND QUAY.

Senator Quay has not the power to break the deadlock by taking himself out of the way. The question is one that is far above and beyond Quay. It is a question of the right of the Republican party of Pennsylvania to make a nomination and to insist that the voice of the majority shall be the voice of the party. That is the issue and there is no other. Senator Quay would be an ingrate should he advocate the surrender of the majority to a small and malicious minority. He cannot do that. It is his duty to remain a candidate until the end and throw all the responsibility of the deadlock upon the shoulders of those where it rightly belongs.

Senator Quay cannot prevent the deadlock, but Boss Flinn, of Pittsburg, and ex-Boss Martin, of Philadelphia, can. Wanamaker does not count a factor, because his personal following in the legislature is extremely small. Unfortunately, both Flinn and Martin can crack their whips about the ears of a sufficient number of personal henchmen to hold the balance of power. Flinn has done this thing because he hates Quay, and his hatred is of more importance to him than the organization of the Republican party. Martin is in the guerrilla warfare because, having once tasted the blood of treachery, he prefers treachery and the absolute violation of his personal pledge to manly politics. These are the men who are doing this thing, and they and their followers must accept the punishment which political parties inflict upon political renegades.

Stalwart Republicans will not concede that the party is going to smash, for while the guerrillas have done their best to create chaos and break it up they have not succeeded in doing so. The attack upon the Republican party has been going on for two years, and Wanamakerism has done its very worst. It has succeeded in overthrowing seven congressional districts, but there is every reason to believe that it has reached the end of its string. The Republicans of Pennsylvania know persecution when they see it, and are not slow in uncovering political hypocrisy. They understand very well that this fight against the Republican majority is not one of principle, but one of personal revenge, and the manner in which at every primary they are rallying to the support of the Republican majority and are repudiating the guerrilla politicians is proof positive that the political combination of Flinn, Martin and Wanamaker will have very litle influence in the future.

MORE COUNTIES ACT.

There could be no more conclusive evidence submitted bearing upon the feeling of Republicans throughout the state than is given by the actions of those Republicans themselves. The Venango county Republican primaries were held on Saturday last and the friends of Colonel Quay had a walk-over in the election of delegates to the state convention. Brigadier General George A. Wiley, of Franklin, and W. H. Corrin, of Oil City, who were chosen state delegates, are pronounced supporters of the Beaver statesman. The few sympathizers of the Flinn bolters who reside in Venango county concluded that it would be useless to make a fight against these candidates, who were chosen by the supporters of the regular organization. General Wiley was in Harrisburg recently and assured the supporters of Senator Quay that both the delegates would be in sympathy with the state organization. The anti-Quay faction which was instrumental in the defeat of the Republican legislative ticket last fall gave up the fight at the last moment when they recognized the hopelessness of their cause. The Quay people were disappointed at the action of the anti-Quay forces in refusing to fight, after the bold bluff they had put up, as they desired to show the anti-Quay people how weak they really are. The weather was disagreeable, but a large vote was polled owing to the contest for some county offices, and where there was a contest the candidate allied with the Quay forces won hands down.

In Forest county Republican primaries were also held on Saturday last, and after a spirited contest the fight resulted in a complete victory for the friends of Colonel Quay. J. C.Scowden, a firm friend of the Beaver leader, was elected delegate to the Republican state convention.

The Republican committee of Snyder county met at Middleburg on Saturday and after fixing the assessments on candidates, adopted resolutions indorsing the candidacy of Colonel Quay for re-election to the United States senate and commending the action of Senator Hummel and Representative Smith, who have been consistently voting for the caucus nominee for United States senator.

DELAWARE SOLID.

William L. Mathues, who has just been re-elected chairman of the Delaware county Republican committee and who has been here in consultation with Senator Penrose, Chairman Elkin and other stalwart Republican leaders, had this to say about the reported purpose of followers of C. L. Magee to withdraw their support from the Republican caucus nominee:

"If Mr. Magee's real friends wish to see him ever elected United States senator, the best advice they can give him is to stand by the present Republican caucus nominee to the end of the contest. Mr. Magee's record for stalwartism would lead the Republicans of the state to look for him to do this. There can be no question of the sentiment of a great majority of the Republicans of Pennsylvania being in favor of the re-election of Senator Quay, and of the feeling that the regular Republicans should adhere to their policy of voting for him to the finish.

"If those who were elected as Republicans will follow the wishes of their party they will ultimately turn in for the causus nominee.

"The Republicans of Delaware county, who have just held their primaries, are in thorough sympathy and accord with the Republicans of Lawrence, Union, Indiana, Lancaster, Blair and the other counties that have recently gone on record by a popular vote at the delegate elections. The issue in Delaware county was not only settled within the Republican organization, but by a popular vote at the general election. A Wanamaker-Prohibition-Democratic fusion campaign was waged in our county in November on the legislative nominees. Colonel Stone received a plurality of 5,007 votes, while the regular Republican nominee for the legislature, despite this fusion deal, received pluralities ranging from 3,000 to 3,500. While two of our members have been voting contrary to popular sentiment, I am still hopeful that before the end of the session they will fall in line with the regular Republican forces. I think they appreciate the fact that they have thus far been treated fairly and considerately."

"From your observation here today, how do you view the situation?" Mr. Mathues was asked.

BLINDLY FLLOW HIM.

"The deadlock may not be broken," replied Mr. Mathues, "but whether there shall be or shall not be an election, the sympathy and support of the Republican organization of the state will be with the men who have loyally, consistently and steadfastly voted for the nominee of the Republican caucus. I watched with interest the polling of the vote of the insurgents today. We were all in the dark as to whom they were going to vote for, until the name of William Flinn, of Pittsburg, was called. When he cast his ballot for Huff the other 49 bolters blindly followed his lead, and voted the same way. The whole proceedings were machine like and indicated a single, settled and fixed purpose, and that is to defeat the nominee of the Republican caucus. The hopping around from one candidate to another has wiped out all consideration of favorite sons, as this vote is evidently to be manipulated to carry out the plans of a few disgruntled leaders."

"What about the delegates to the Republican state convention from Delaware?"

"No matter what may be the outcome on the senatorship," replied Mr. Mathues, positively, "the four delegates from our county will be found in line with the regular Republican state organization. I am informed that there are now 31 delegates elected in the different counties who are in accord with the same principle, and that not one has been chosen who will act contrary to this policy. The organization will triumph in the end, as political history has demonstrated in every condition similar to that existing here today."

WORKINGMEN FOR QUAY.

Henry Howester, president of the state legislative board of railroad employes of Pennsylvania, when interviewed regarding the testimony of Parker Titus, the railroad conductor, who admitted having urged Representative Heil, of Northampton, to vote for Senator Quay, said that railroad employees are generally in favor of the re-election of M. S. Quay. He added that it is an undisputed fact that Mr. Quay is a friend of labor, and that railroad men feel very kindly toward him.

"It is the policy of our organization," said he, "to recognize no political party, but to simply use our influence in behalf of those who stand by labor interests. Mr. Titus carried out these principles when he requested Mr. Heil to vote for Quay. In every instance when our people have applied to Mr. Quay his influence has been exerted in our favor, and for this reason corporate power, in my estimation, is trying to crush him. While we have no special choice in the senatorial fight, but favor a purely non-partisan position, I will say that under the circumstances if Mr. Quay is not re-elected we will certainly lose a friend. Mr. Titus was entirely correct in the independent course he took in the interest of the cause which we espouse."

In one Pennsylvania town the merchants have learned a lesson on advertising. They would not support their local weekly paper sufficiently to keep it going, believing that it was not necessary for an old established house to advertise extensively. The paper stopped publication and then the merchants realized the loss of their weekly messenger. Now they have found it necessary to give a large sum of money as an inducement to regain what they had driven away.

TWO EASTERS.

I.

Late one afternoon in March, 1898 a Spanish column halted in a small villiage of Santiago Province, and out posts were thrown out to guard against the sudden onslaught of the roaming bands of insurgents who overran the country at the time.

Toward sunset one of these outposts stationed near a modest villa, called at it for the purpose of obtaining food and a little wine as well as the more serious one of discovering the allegiance of the occupants. To the soldiers surprise the place, while in good repair, was apparently deserted, Entering, they saw no one, heard no one, until the sergeant in charge, going into one of the wings, encountered a little child, a girl of about six, sobbing softly but piteously over the bed of her dead mother, a victim of typhoid fever, whose life had evidently passed away but a few hours' previously, leaving the little one alone in the world, save for her distant father, a subaltern in Garcia's army, fighting for his country's freedom.

So pretty was the little one, and so winning were her ways, that even the rough Spanish soldiers were attracted to her, and the next day when the column again moved, she had been formally adopted as the regiment's pet and mascotte.

In her innocence she learned to like the soldiers, and there was not one of them who did not enjoy her presence and the privilege of sharing his rations with her. One day when a soldier had exclaimed to her, "Viva Espana!" he was surprised, and yet amused, to hear her immediately and no less vociferously respond with a shrill, "Viva Cuba Libre!"—the seditious words which, uttered by an adult, would have landed him or her in a prison and perhaps before the firing squad.

In the case of the baby pet, though it was different, and it quickly became one of the jokes of the rank and file to have her retort as she had done. The vigor with which she gave the cry of her patriotic father greatly amused the Spaniards, and she, although never knowing its significence, associated it with fun and laughter, and kindly pats of fondness upon her curly head.

The colonel of the regiment was a man of different calibre from his men. He was young for his rank, which he had reached by a combination of family influence and a reputation for harshness and severity, which won him high favor with Weyler. He had in him the material of an Alva, and wanted only the opportunity to exhibit it.

The opportunity came. He learned of the little rebel girl and of her sayings and doings, and that his men should tolerate and even laughingly applaud her baby defiance was enough to enrage him.

He sent for the child and she came romping into his presence. He glared at her from behind his table, she smiled confidently at him.

"Viva Espana!" the colonel said slowly.

"Viva Cuba Libre!" came the response.

There was a pistol shot, and with one gasp the little girl dropped, murdered by the colonel's own weapon.

That night the regiment nearly mutinied, and inside of a week over one hundred of its members had gone over bodily to the insurgents anxious only to meet their late commander in battle and avenge the blood of their slaughtered innocent.

II.

Easter Sunday, 1898, was a warm still day at Santiago, a day so peaceful that it would be difficult to believe that a devastating war had been waged thereabouts for three years. The little church of San Miguel at El Caney, a suburb to the Eastward of the city, was filled with its Easter throng, decked in the gayest holiday attire that the general impoverishment permitted. The congregation was almost wholly Cuban, in both nativity and devotion to the cause of freedom; yet it was with reckless boldness with which Luis Nunez entered and prayed for the success of the Cuban arms and the welfare of his young wife and their six year old girl, to see whom, after a year's absence, he had obtained leave for a few days, penetrated the Spanish lines and now prayed devoutly in the little church, the kind padre of which had married them seven years before. As the inspiring anthem in praise of the risen Christ was heard, the brave Cuban officer's heart exulted. Near his home that very day he would clasp his loved ones to his breast. And then, too, his keen Latin imagination pictured in the chants of praise and joy an allegory of a resurrected country, of free Cuba, for was not the great nation to the north arming in preparation in behalf of his struggling compatriots? He imagined that even now he could see the red and yellow displaced by the tri-color with the lone star over the government palace in Santiago, and himself marching triumphantly with his ragged veterans, side by side with the blue clad soldiers of the great republic.

Another fervid prayer of hope and he left the little church for a brief visit to those who had so often attended it with him in the past.

He had scarce gone a mile when he was halted, but in a moment recognized his accoster as an old and tried neighbor.

"My Lucia and my little Teresa, how are they?" he eagerly demanded after the first hurried greeting.

The old man's face was sad and harsh. Clasping Luis' two hands in his, he looked mournfully into his eyes.

"Have you, have you not heard?" he slowly murmured. "Do you not know of —"

Luis' face read that of his friend In a few seconds the tale was told, the tale of his wife's brief illness and death from want of proper attendance of his child's cruel murder. With clinched hands and ashen face he heard all. Then, with a friendly "Adios," he turned and retraced his steps to the little church and, on Easter Sunday, in the solitude of the now deserted edifice he gave way to his grief and when he had left registered a vow that never would he stop until the murderer and all his kin were exterminated. Never was vendetta more fiercely sworn.

Three day later Lieutenant Luis Nunez, bitter in his grief and his hatred for the Spanish, rejoined his men under Rabi at Asseraderos.

III.

The summer was at its height, and the once peaceful village of El Caney heard strange sounds and saw strange scenes. The loose tunics of the Spanish troops were about the streets, and in the newly built trenches, facing toward the east, where, on numberless crests of hill, the invading Stars and Stripes shook out their beautiful colors to the sluggish breeze. The day was not unlike that of the Easter Sunday when Luis Nunez, broken in heart but not in spirit, begot a new animus for his warfare against the men of Linares. Toral and Vara del Rey.

The stillness was broken only at intervals by the dreamy notes of bugles and the distant thunder of cannonading on the coast by the sturdy tars of Sampson's fleet.

Then the terrible drama was opened by the ringing shots from Capron's battery, and El Caney felt the first missiles of warfare. With deadly aim the shells poured in as the range was accurately established and the little church was pierced again and again by the Yankee shot.

The bugle blew more, and the blue lines came nearer, the battery ceased firing, and sweeping the valiant but outclassed defenders before them the cheering Americans, with many a hurrah cut short by a bullet and ending in a death rattle, charged into the village. The little church became an hospital and gentle nurses tended the wounded on both sides with equal tenderness and care. El Caney was won.

Further to the southward another and even more desperate struggle took place, the battle of San Juan. The magnificent charge of Kent's division up that hill was one of the most picturesque feats of the war. It seemed impossible, in the face of the withering fire from the trenches and block houses on top of the hill for men to scale the height, yet they did it, though their path was strewn with the dead and wounded.

Less than a hundered blue shirted slouch hatted, stalwart men reached the top unhurt, eagerly following the gallant Lieutenant Ord, the scion of a race of soldiers, himself a splendid soldier to the core. He had pressed on dashingly in advance of his men, reached the block house and, flushed with the joy of triumph, a joy known only to those who have felt the madness of battle, saw the enemy in flight and his brave men at his heels ready to follow on wherever he led.

For a moment he paused, for at his feet lay a wounded Spanish officer. The bravest are the kindest, and Ord was of the bravest. He pointed to the wounded man.

"Take him up men. Care for him. He is wounded," he cried.

Those were his last words. With fiendish treachery the prostrate Spaniard, waiting until Ord had turned to press on, drew his revolver and at close range blow out the brains of the noble American officer. The sight drove Ord's men to a frenzy, made all the greater by their devotion to their young officer. With curses they leaped upon the assassin, for such he was under the circumstances, and were about to dispatch him in their rage, when a nimbler man leaped before them, a lithe, lean but broad shouldered man, with the swarthy skin and black eyes of a Cuban, and the broad shoulder belt, machete and stars of a Cuban officer. He had the same battle gleam in his eyes as they, but added to that was a fierce glance of hate and revenge that made him look almost a madman.

"Stop!" he cried, in excellent English. "He is mine! I know him."

With a bound he stood near him.

"Double murderer!" he hissed in Spanish, and with a swift stroke of the machete the Spaniard's head was cleft, but not before his revolver once more spoke and Luis Nunez fell by the side of the gallant Ord, with whom he had charged the bloody hill.

As he was carried to the rear there was a look of contentment on the Cuban's face that belied his suffering from the Spaniard's pistol wound.

"Rodriguez Cavadenga is dead," he murmured. "I killed him—for Cuba—for Lucia—for Teresa—in open fight, too."

From the time of his rejoining his fellows, after the surreptitious visit to El Caney, where the awful news was given him of the destruction of his family, Nunez had engaged in all manner of daring exploits in the hope of coming in contact with the Spanish colonel, whom he was not long in identifying as Cavadenga, a man he had known and disliked before he revolted and left home. Up to the time that the United States intervened in the war, Cavadenga had always, but unwittingly eluded Nunez, whose effort was always to get in that part of the country where his enemy was. But when the American forces threatened the island, the lesser garrisons were called in and concentrated in the large cities, it being not uncommon in such cases for the Spanish officers to give their men twenty four hours of absolute license prior to their departure. They were permitted to rob, murder and outrage in any way, provided their victims were Cubans and provided they reported ready to march away at the bugle call next day.

One of the bodies was that of Cavadenga, which was ordered to Santiago, and there at last he was located by Nunez, who spent much of his time in communication with the American naval officers blockading the harbor, and it was due to their recommendations, which he had well earned, that upon the arrival of Shafter's Fifth Army Corps, Nunez was given a position as aid on the staff of Gen. Kent. His eagerness to get at the Spaniards was equal to that of the American soldiers, and when he found that movement was to be made at once on the enemies defences his eyes danced with joy and anticipation. When the bugle blew the charge before San Juan he picketed his horse, and on the plea that he might be of service as a scout pressed ahead with the American troops and soon found himself on the firing line. On, on he went across the bloody valleys; up, up the steep hill in the rain of Mauser bullets, shell and shrapnel, until not a dozen men were ahead of him. The moment the Spanish colonel fell, Nunez had recognized him.

IV.

Long days Nunez lingered in the hospital. His wound was a severe one, and for some time his recovery was doubtful. But he received good care and had the wonderful good fortune to be attended by a young nurse, whose dark beauty was itself a balm to him, deprived as he was of anything, now upon which to gaze with softness. From the very first she had spoken to him in Spanish, and with a strong Castillian accent although he quickly learned she was a Cuban and had joined the Red Cross in the United States in May. In his weakness and loneliness, and in the semi-delirum of his fever he had revealed to her his happy past, then his taking up the sword for freedom. In all she was deeply interested, and there was an unusual kindness and sympathy in her demeanor toward him, until finally, in a burst of confidence, he told her of his child and of the vow he had made to exterminate the murderer "and his kin."

There was a marked agitation on the handsome nurse's face as he told her of the tragedy. When he told the murderer's name her face paled, her teeth were set and she abruptly left his side.

Santiago fell the next day, and Nunez was soon transferred from the rude field hospital to more commodious quarters in the captured city. Despite his greater comfort his recovery was retarded. He seemed to grow sadder, and then it dawned upon him that the absence of the pretty nurse, who was so intensely moved by his recital of sorrow, had much to do with his condition. He certainly missed her. He appreciated that fully. He missed her extremely.

One morning about a fortnight after his installation in the Santiago hospital, he was delighted to be awakened from a nap by the voice of his ministering angel, but somehow it seemed unfamiliar. She was not the same cheerful being she used to be, though if anything, her attention to him was more marked than ever. She went out of her way to please him, and two or three times brought him flowers and delicacies which other invalids did not receive. Yet her manner was reserved and he began to fear that her Red Cross duties were too arduous and were wearing on her.

He suggested this to her, but she quickly denied it.

"I am very well and strong," she said. Then quickly added, "But I am unhappy"—and went away. The following day she seemed brighter but her faint gaiety was forced and did not last. Senorita Nina, as she was called throughout the hospital was suffering from a sadness, though Nunez, that must be peculiar as we as great. He endeavored to fathom it, but vainly. She became dumb whenever he sought to learn anything about her. One morning, though, he had a shock. She had left him for a few moments in the care of another nurse, a sweet faced American woman, whose first unwitting act was to pick up from the floor by the side of his bed a handkerchief, which she handed him, asking if it were his.

Unfolding it, he glanced at it, but, only once; that was sufficient. Upon its corner, delicately embroidered were the words.

"NINA CAVADENGA!"

There is nothing quicker than human thought. That one brief glance was enough to cause a torrent of thought which, in Nunez mind, was expressed in the one exclamation:

"Cavadenga!"

It was Cavadenga who had cruelly slain his little daughter and treacherously, against the rules of civilization, murdered the gallant Ord at the moment that the latter was thinking only of the Spaniard's welfare.

Nunez saw it all now. Nina was included in "all of Cavadenga's kin. She was one of those he had sworn to kill.

V.

The band of the Fifth United States Infantry was playing in the Plaza das Armas and the Stars and tripes and the flag of Cuba Libre uttered from window and flagpole. Orderly crowds listened to the fine music, children played in the clean streets; American soldiers and Cuban policemen patroled the street and there was a general air of contentment and rapidly growing prosperity in Santiago. The contrast between the scene now and that of nine months before, when famine disease, bombard ment, panic and the other war penalties prevailed was most striking. Cuba was indeed reborn. The tyranny, neglect, apathy and corruption of Spanish rule was now gone for nearly a year, and in their place had come the freedom, the energy and the prosperity of American institutions and custom. Young Cuba was taking with avidity to the new order of things, and the war of expulsion against Spain needed no other justification than a glance at happy, thriving Santiago this glorious Palm Sunday. 1899.

Thus, no doubt, thought two people. a tall, military looking man, and a dark haired, dark eyed young woman who sat side by side on a veranda overlooking a principal street.

From the glances they gave to each other it was plain that they were far from being enemies, even though the man was a Nunez and the woman a Cavadenga. A power greater than the thirst for revenge had long since conquered Nunez, and yet, like his race, he found comfort in the knowledge he had gained that Nina, though the daughter of Colonel Cavadenga, was his daughter by his Cuban wife, who had long since left him on account of his cruelty and taken up her abode in the United States, and Nina had gone to the front as a nurse under the impulse of mingled love for her stricken native land and gratitude to the land which had come to its rescue.

VI.

The little church at El Caney was dressed up in its finest the following Easter Day, and its visitors were better dressed, better fed, better natured and better off in every way than they had been on Easter Sunday a year ago There was happiness everywhere but no happiness so great as that of the afternoon, when Senorita Cavadenga became Senora Nunez in the chancel of San Miguel, and as a beam of sunlight burst in the middle of the ceremony, through a hole made by one of Capron's shells on July 1 1898, it struck all as being an augury of bright, sunlit future, shining through the scars of the past, with the promise to resurrected Cuba and her northern saviours of.

"MIMI."

"Hannah Hall!"

It was the last name on Dr. Belton's list, nor was he sorry.

Dr. Belton had been out all day, facing the storm and tempest, and now the prospect of a warm fireside, a cup of steaming coffee and a pair of velvet slippers began to seem by no means uninviting.

"If it were anyone else I'd go straight home," soliloquized the doctor. "But Hannah is so friendless and alone, poor little Hannah!"

Hannah Hall was a manufacturer of artificial flowers, a pale, slender little creature, with great, startled eyes, like a fawn's and thick, bronze colored hair wound around her head in heavy plaits. She was just recovering from a sickness that had lasted for months—a weary, wasting sickness that had left her without friends, without money, almost without hope.

"I should have died had it not been for Dr. Belton," she said wistfully.

And now that she was convalescent the daily visit of the good physician was a tonic to which she looked eagerly forward.

He stood looking down at her as she sat in the big rocking chair borrowed from the tailoress in the next room, a faint tinge of color just beginning to dye her cheeks.

"Better, eh?" said he.

"Yes, doctor, better; but—"

"Much better,' nodded he. "You will be able to take that book folding situation next week. Artificial flowers is a poisonous business; you must never go back to it."

"I am so much obliged to you for obtaining a place for me, doctor."

"Fiddlesticks," good humoredly interrupted Dr. Belton. "Eh? What are you crying for now? Crying isn't going to brace up your nerves, and you know that as well as I do."

"Because I am so poor. Because I have not a cent to pay you with,' sobbed Hannah Hall, almost hysterically.

"Did I ask for pay?"

"No; but—but——"

"Now, look here," said the doctor glancing around the room. "If you really want to pay me——"

"If, doctor——"

"Well, then, as you really want to pay me, now's your chance. My little daughter is fond of birds, and if you care to send her that bullfinch of yours——"

"Little Mimi? Oh, I should be so grateful!"

"He whistles nicely," said the doctor carelessly. "Let me see—is it 'Auld Lang Syne,' or 'Banks and Breas,' that is his tune?"

"Neither," said Hannah smiling through her tears. "'Blue Eyed Mary.'"

"'Blue Eyed Mary,' then be it. Belle will be delighted. And our little account will be all straight."

"God bless you, Dr. Belton," said Hannah, fervently; and so the good doctor carried off little red breasted Mimi, in his wicker cage, to Belle, the only daughter, who kept house for her widowed father.

"Papa what a beautiful bird!" cried the young girl, ecstatically.

"It a piping bullfinch," said Dr. Belton, carelessly unbuttoning his snow sprinkled coat. "Whistles tunes, and all that sort of thing. It is a present to you from one of my poor patients,"

"I'll love it dearly," said Bell. "How tame it is." as she stroked down the bluish gray plumes and admired the rosy breast. "What is its name papa?"

"Mimi, I believe. Now get me my supper, child, for I am chilled throught."

"Papa, you look pale; you tremble papa. Are you sure you are quite well?"

"Quite, child. It's only the cold. I'll go to bed early tonight and get a good rest."

Dr, Belton went to bed accordingly. And he never roseagain. A malignant type of prevalent fever set in, and he was carried out in his coffin within three weeks.

Hannah Hall never knew it. She, who would have been among the truest, most earnest mourners for the kindly natured man, never heard of how he died and was buried.

But Hannah's life went on, turned as lives sometimes are into a

ANGLERS and big-game hunters whose excursions in search of game or fish lead them to the little known regions of New Brunswick, will be interested in a map shortly to be published by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company, 346 Broadway, N. Y. This map has been especially prepared by the official draughtsman of the Province of New Brunswick, and no pains have been spared to make it accurate, both as to its topography and as to the points which more especially interest sportman—the localities where big-game and fish are most abundant. On the map those areas where moose, caribou, deer and bear are found are enclosed in wide red lines, the streams where good trout fishing is to be had are marked with blue crosses, and the rivers which salmon ascend are marked by blue circles. Thus at a glance, the sportsman has before him all the possibilities of the region.

NAUGHTY GIRLS FIGHT POLICE

Twenty-five Use Knives to Clear Their Way to Freedom.

STUDENTS HELP IN CAPTURE

POLICE CLUB THE GIRLS FIERCELY

Chillicothe, Mo., April 6.—Twenty-five girls, inmates of the Girls' Industrial Home, rebelled Wednesday afternoon and arming themselves with butcher knives and other kitchen weapons forced the guards to open the gates of the institution and give them their liberty.

The girls marched in a body from the home into this city, where they broke up into small squads and paraded the streets. The teachers of the institution telephoned to the police with the aid of citizens, who at once set to work to capture the runaways.

Two of the girls whose names are not known made a desperate resistance. Each was armed with a large and long butcher knife, with which they struck at their would-be captors and made them keep back. Finally several other policemen appeared on the scene of the battle. They tried to arrest the girls, but the latter were determined not to be caught and they slashed at the police until in self defense the officers drew their clubs.

Unable to disarm them in any other way, the policemen clubbed them almost into insensibility. Even then the courage of the girls was not gone and it took all the strength of the policemen to overpower and disarm the pair.

The students of the Marmaduke Military Academy were called on to help recapture the other girls and over 200 students responded. The girls led the gray-clad youths a wild and merry chase, but one by one the fugitives were captured until only six remained at large.

The six are the most desperate of the lot and it is probable that they will not be taken without a degrading fight.

The girls say they rebelled because they were being starved and abused by the retiring superintendent, Miss Clark, who is to be succeeded by Mrs. R. U. Debolt, of Trenton. All who surrendered or were taken were sent back to the reformatory except the two who were clubbed so fiercely by the policemen. They are in the hospital.

Laid to Rest in the Tomb.

On Friday afternoon the late Samuel Gehret was laid to rest in the Union cemetery.

The body was taken to the Lutheran church where solemn and fitting services were held over it. The large edifice was filled with friends who had gathered to pay a last tribute to this departed one. The casket that bore the body was of solid oak mounted with silver handles, a silver plate on the lid had engraved upon it the name of "father." As the funeral procession entered the church the organist Mrs. Robert Kline, began to play a beautiful but solemn march. The singing rendered by the choir was impressive and pretty. Rev. H. C. Holloway D. D., of the Lutheran church and Rev. Allen Rhen of the United Brethern church had charge of the services.

Mr. Gehret was an honored member of the Knights of Golden Eagles. This body of men were present at the funeral.

The pallbearers were as follows: Messrs. John Keichline, John Strayer, Curt Johnson, James Shirk, David Barlet and James McClure.

new and different channel. "One very fine bird, ma'am," said the bowing proprietor, upon whom the liveried carriage and lustrous folds of real camel's hair had not been thrown away. "Left here for sale, ma'am a few days ago, at only $40. Very cheap at the price, ma'am. Whistles several tunes. Hush-sh! You can hear him now."

He held up his finger in token of silence, as the tuneful, flute like warblings of the little creature who hung in the window rose softly to the rising of an ancient love tune!

"Blue Eyed Mary!" cried Mrs Etherege, clasping her lilac gloved hands together. "Mimi. It's Mimi!"

Mimi it was in very truth, singing away in the sunshine as if his very soul were in his voice.

"How came he here?" eagerly demanded Mrs. Etherege. "Who left him here for sale? I'll buy him at once—but why did Dr. Belton sell him?"

The bird merchant referred to a huge leather bound volume lying on his desk,

"He was left here on commission by Miss Isabella Belton, No. — — Outwood St."

"Isabella Belton!"

Mrs. Etherege remembered Dr. Belton's frequent allusions to the idolized daughter. "Belle," who was the one star of his solitary hearthstone.

"Can it be the same?" she asked herself. "And if it is, what could possibly have induced her to part with Mimi? I must go and see. Where do you say the place is?" she resumed, addressing the man.

pary write down the address for me Andsay—send the bird to No, —— Madison, Ave.

And she hurried from the store

Pale, worn and weary, Belle Belton was stitching away at the white silk embroidery for which she was paid so miserable a pittance by the yard, when a knock sounded at the door. She started up, nervously fearful lest it should be the tyrannical landlord whose visits she dreaded, since her rent had fallen so sadly in arrears. Poor Belle! The bright faced girl had faded into the sallow, hollow eyed woman, whose daily life was a fight with Beggary, and scarce one of her summer friends would have known her again, even had they taken the trouble to look her up.

'Come in," she uttered, the color varying on her cheeks as she spoke, and Hannah Hall came into the room.

"Are you Dr. Belton's daughter?" she asked. How vividly the squalid scene recalled the days of her own poverty and distress, the days when kind Dr. Belton's hand had prevented her from drifting hoplessly down the dark tides of dispair.

"Yes," Belle answered, wonderingly.

"And where is he?"

"Did you not know? Dead, long ago!" Bell burst into tears as she spoke.

"And you are poor, alone, and I not to know? Belle Belton, God has sent me hither to repay the heavy debt I owed your father.

Isabella Belton lives in the midst of luxury now, the dear adopted sister of Mrs. Etherege, and the sunshine of her life rises out of the memory of the dead.

"I cannot lavish too much love on Dr. Belton's daughter." Hannah says. "I should have perished once but for his generosity, his patience, his unwearying kindness."

And Mimi, the little red breasted finch swings amid lace draperies, in a plate glass window, and warbles "Blue Eyed Mary" as sweetly as ever.

Mr. Trowbridge was born in Susquehanna county, afterwards removed to Lamar township, where he resided until 1870, since which time he has lived in the west.

Good Music.

The opening of the new W.C.T.U. rooms on Sunday was rendered very enjoyable by the fine music, from the Orchestra led by Mr. Christy Smith. A quartette, and one who by the way are always most willing and obliging in lending their voices to every good cause, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Meyers, Miss Dorworth and Mr. Hard Harris, rendered a very pretty selection. A solo by Mrs. Dr. Thos. Hayes accompanied by Miss Aiken on the organ, assured us the singer had lost none of her sweet tones and clear enunciation during her absence. Of Mr. Waddle's solo, "The Good Sheperd" to hear him once, is to want to hear him often, as a fine base voice is a great treat. The success of the service of of song is entirely due, to the kindness and interest in securing the music of Miss Aiken one of our own W.C.T.U. women, and one who always makes a success of whatever she undertakes. The thanks of the society are given to all who helped and gave pleasure to the large audience assembled.

In Cupid's Net.

The following marriage licenses were issued during the past week by Register G. W. Rumberger:

James S. Lucas and May Freeze both of Runville.

Harry C. Taylor and Jennie C. Howley both of Bellefonte.

Milton Lucas, of Axe Mann, and Clara B. Young of Bellefonte.

Another Counterfeit.

A new counterfeit piece is supposed to represent a quarter, but bears on its face no stamp and has no milling. It is simply a round smooth piece of metal that passes very readily for twenty-five cents. It is easily taken by merchants who make change in a hurry and think from its smooth face that it is a well worn quarter. A way in which to detect the piece and to distinguish it from a coin of the realm is to look for the little notches around the edge. The face of a coin wears away quickest and the spurious piece can be readily distinguished by the rim. The new piece, which is evidently of nickel or German silver, is a trifle narrower than the genuine quarter.

—John E. Reilley, a glass cutter in the employ of the Bellefonte Window Glass company, was called to his home at Muncy, Ind., by telegraph announcing the serious illness of his son. He departed on the 4:44 train Wednesday afternoon.

—Itching piles! Never mind if physicians have failed to cure you. Try Doan's Ointment. No failure there. 50 cents at any drug store.

—A. E. Maxwell, of Montoursville, sued G. W. Hall, of that place, to recover a balance of over two dollars on a bill. Judgment was on Monday given the plaintiff by the justice whereupon Hall retalliated by swearing out a warrant charging Maxwell with setting fire to his own store, which was destroyed about a year ago. Maxwell gave bail for trial at court.

—Half the ills that man is heir to come from indigestion. Burdock Blood Bitters strengthens and tones the stomach, makes indigestion impossible.

—A decision was rendered by Judge McClure, of Union county recently, in a somewhat unusual case. Exceptions had been filed to an auditor's fee, on the grounds that it was too small. The court sustained the exception and the modest auditor thereupon raised his charges to correspond to the amount suggested by the excepting attorney.

—"Little Colds." Thousands of lives sacrificed every year. Dr. Woods' Norway Pine Syrup cures little colds, cures big colds too, down to the very verge of consumption.

—Harry Wilson, a young man who makes his home at Spangler, had his right leg broken last week by a fall of coal at the Susquehanna colliery. The same day John Gwiste a track layer in Allport No. 1, had his scalp stripped from the skull for several inches by being hit on the head with a rail. His skull was not fractured.

BOLD BURGLARS.

They Broke Into the Catholic Church Sunday Night.

St John's Catholic church on Bishop street was the scene of a bold burglary sometime during Sunday night or Monday morning. The thieves gained an entrance to the building by cutting out a pane of glass in one of the windows and reaching through and unfastening the window. They stole the gold chalice off the altar valued at $200. and also broke open the poor box and robbed it of its contents. Just how much money was in the box is not known as it is only opened every three months.

The robbery was discovered Monday morning when Father McArdle entered the church to say mass. The authorities were at once notified and a diligent search is being made for the perpetrators of the outrage. There is no definite clue to the thieves but it is believed that it was the work of tramps. There is an organized gang of thieves traveling over the country robbing the different churches and it is believed by some that they were responsible for the above robbery.

Met a Terrible Death.

The Sunbury Item gives the following particulars of a frightful accident:

Elwood Rumberger, aged 18 years, son of James Rumberger, of Mahantongo, was killed in a runaway accident on Thursday while driving over the Mahantongo mountains. One of the horses became unmanageable, and it is thought that in trying to regain control of them Elwood dropped the lines and in reaching forward to get them, lost his balance and fell forward on the horses. At the same time his feet caught in the iron foot rest on the step in front of the driver's seat, and he then pitched forward, head downward, and was dragged for over a half a mile down the rough and stony mountain road, kicked by the now thoroughly maddened horses, and jolted from side to side by the careening of the big truck wagon. The head and upper portion of the body was crushed out of human shape. One leg was broken near the ankle, and the other foot was broken. His head and shoulders were only a mass of bruises and quivering flesh and the features were out of human semblance. It was a dreadful sight that no one could look upon unmoved.

Word was sent across the mountain to his father and he arrived about noon and took the body home. He was almost crazed by the dreadful sight and his grief was pitiful to witness.

The Late Mr. Early.

Miss Belle Black, the leading lady of "The Late Mr. Early" company, which is to play an engagement at the opera house Thursday night, is one of those fortunate artistes whose lines have always been cast in pleasant places. Almost immediately after her debut on the stage Miss Black was chosen to create the leading role in Hoyt's "A Black Sheep," a production in which her personal success was so marked that immediately after the long metropolitan run of the play she found herself in great demand for New York productions. To this line of work she has devoted her talents almost exclusively and has created many famous roles. It is said that only through the fact "The Late Mr. Early" is to play but very few one night stands this season that Miss Black was prevailed upon to join the organization. Great personal beauty and charm of manner are said to be not the smallest of her many gifts.

Gospel Service and Lecture.

There will be a gospel service and lecture in the A. M. E. church next Friday evening April 15th, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. The speaker will be Mr. Roderrick I. Scotland, of the West Indies. The lecture will treat on the life and custom of the people of the West Indies and the agricultural resources of the islands. There will also be shown a fine collection of the curiosities of the island. The public is cordially invited to hear this instructing and interesting lecture. Admission, adults 15 cents children 10 cents.

Do Not be Fooled.

With the idea that any preparation your druggist may put up and try to sell you will purify your blood like Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has a reputation—it has earned its record. It is prepared under the personal supervision of educated pharmacists who know the nature, quality and medicinal effect of all the ingredients used. Hood's Sarsaparilla absolutely cures all forms of blood disease when other medicines fail to do any good. It is the World's great Spring Medicine and the One True Blood Purifier.

—George Leonard Andrews, brevet major general, U. S. A., retired, formerly professor of modern languages at West Point Military academy, died of heart trouble at his home in Brooklyn Tuesday, April 4th aged 70. He had been ill for several months.

—Edward Viard and James Morris, both of Clearfield county, awaiting trial for larceny, made their escape from the Clearfield jail Tuesday night, April 4 by digging through the wall with a pick and lowering themselves to the ground by means of a rope made from one of their blankets. They were not missed until Wednesday and had several hours' start when the sheriff's posse began a search for them.

A Successful Day.

The Lutheran congregation of Bellefonte had a very delightful and successful day on the 9th inst, in the effort made to liquidate their church debt. For some months they had been preparing for this day, and the general secretary of the Board of Church Extension, Rev. H. H. Weber, was to have been with them, but was prevented on account of illness. He sent however, a most excellent substitute in Rev. F. P. Manhart of Baltimore, who preached splendid sermons to crowded houses, and did good work besides. The results of the day were very gratifying. By the talent system operated by the Sunday school and the share plan, they had $400. to start with in the morning, and during the day raised $1200 additional, making a total of $1600. This reduces the debt over one half. Some of the sister churches closed their places of worship in the evening and came to the Lutheran church. This showed a beautiful spirit and was recognized by the pastor Rev. Dr. Holloway in appropriate remarks. The Dr, has great reason for encouragement in his work.

Ham Sandwiches and Coffee for the People.

On Odd Fellow day April 26 the young men of the Young Men's Christian Association are going to serve ham sandwiches and coffee to the many people that will be in town on that day, at their rooms on Allegheny street. Now there is no other christian organization in Bellefonte that needs your help and assistance more than these young men do, in this work in saving young men. And it would please them wonderfully if you would all turn in and help them. And now another thing, don't let two or three churches or other organizations jump in and do the same as these boys are going to do, because if they do, none of them will make any money. But rather let all the churches join in and help the Y. M. C. A. You have all had your turn now let the young men have a chance.

Useful Newspaper Catalogue.

It is a pleasure to see a volume which is so well adapted to the use of advertisers, publishers and others interested in the periodical publications of the United States and Canada as the newspaper catalogue published by Messrs. Dauchy & Company, 27 Park Place, New York. The 1899 edition of this work has just been issued and lies upon our desk. It is a large volume of 752 pages and gives complete and carefully arranged statistics as to frequency of issue, date of establishment, circulation, etc., of every publication. The feature of a ruled memorandum space against each paper which is peculiar to this work, makes it especially valuable as a desk book. In this space full notes can be kept of contracts, records of prices, etc., so that they can always be at hand in easily accessible shape. One feature which strikes us as especially commendable in this book is the binding, which without being loose, is so contrived that the book opens flat upon the desk and stays open. The book is for sale by the publishers or will be ordered by any bookseller.

Fishermen Will Scowl at This.

A most curious revenue bill was introduced in the House at Harrisburg by Mr. Peoples, of Lancaster. It proposes to tax game and food fish caught, the money to go into the State treasury. The bill requires every sportsman to keep an accurate account of every food fish caught. The tax is fixed as follows per pound:

Brook trout, 15c; black fish, 2c; eels, ½c; every other variety of game fish, 3c; shad, ½c, and every other variety of food fish, ½c. Sportsmen and fishermen are required to go before justices of the peace and make affidavit about their fish.

The Man Got Even.

"A few days since," relates a solicitor "as I was sitting with my friend D—in his office a man came in and said:

"'Mr. W—, the livery stable keeper, tricked me shamefully yesterday and I want to be even with him.'

"'State your case,' said D—

"'I asked him how much he'd charge me for a horse to go to Richmond. He said half a sovereign. I took the horse, and when I came back he said he wanted another half sovereign for coming back, and he made me pay it.'

D—gave his client some legal advice, which he immediately acted upon, as follows. He went to the livery stable keeper and said. 'How much will you charge for a a horse to Windsor?"

"The man replied: 'A sovereign.'

"Client accordingly went to Windsor, came back by rail, and went to the livery stable keeper saying:

"'Here is your money,' paying him a sovereign.

"'Where is my horse? said W.—

"'He's at Windsor, answered the client, 'I hired him only to go to Windsor.'"—Pearson's weekly.

—Accidents come with distressing frequency on the farm. Cuts, Bruises; stings Sprains. Dr, Thomas' Eclectric Oil relieves the pain instantly. Never safe without it.

BIG DAY AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Rev. J. Womeldorf Draws a Large Crowd of Men.

On Sunday afternoon Rev. J. Womeldorf, of the United Evangelical church, led the men's meeting at four o'clock in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms. His audience was composed of one hundred and twenty men and boys.

Rev. Womeldorf is an interesting speaker and every one present was delighted with his talk.

The singing was old-fashioned and good and every man and boy joined in heartily and helped swell the choruses of praise that ascended to the Lord. The meetings seem to be growing more interesting every Sunday.

The weekly report, handed us by the secretary, is as follows:

Monday	130
Tuesday	128
Wednesday	127
Thursday	129
Friday	128
Saturday evening	70
Sunday	120
Total	832

Next Sunday afternoon the meeting will be led by "Jerry Stine," a member of the Senior class at the Bellefonte High school. Jerry is a young man whose home is up Buffalo Run valley. He is preparing himself for college, where he will study for the ministry. Every boy and man in Bellefonte should turn out and hear this boy expound God's word. Of course, you need not expect a long sermon from him, but he will tell you the same story that you have often heard before—that is of Jesus and His love.

Unclaimed Letter List.

The following letters remain in the Bellefonte postoffice uncalled for April 10, 1899:

Samuel G. Blauser, H. M. Elliott, Jack French, Edward J. Flood, Mrs. C. H. McClure, John Meader, Mrs. E. G. Matts, George Poorman, George Skepker, Stanley L. Smith, Earl Varner, Forden Walker, John F. Young.

When called for please say advertised.

W. W. MONTGOMERY, P. M.

The Date is Drawing Near.

Not quite three weeks will have to elapse before the great Odd Fellows demonstration will be made in this place and thousands of members of the order will be here to participate in the grand parade. All the different branches of the order from the subordinate encampments to the patriarchs militant will be out in full regalia.

The military maneuvering of the visiting cantons will be well worth seeing especially since there will be so many of them in line and so handsomely uniformed.

The Daughters of Rebekah are particularly invited to attend the anniversary.

Remember that the date is fixed for the 26th of April, that excursion rates to and from Bellefonte will prevail on all railroads and that is going to be a gala day in town.

The speakers on this occasion are as follows:
